HAPGOOD Says:

Lloyd George, Through Clever Handling of Northcliffe Dinner Incident, Has Placed Publisher in Ridiculous Situation

By NORMAN HAPGOOD

Washington, Aug. 2.—The Northcliffe episode in this country gives an opportunity to see the tactics of Lloyd George more clearly than can usually be discerned. In general they are so complicated that it is hard for an ordinary eye to follow.

NORMAN HAPGOOD at Hornet

But in this case we have a perfect and visible example of the methods of the master-tactician, who is likely soon to appear among us. When, soon after they had combined to get Mr. Asquith out of office, the Welshman and the publishers began to pull in opposite directions it became evident that the Prime Minister was letting personal motives appear whenever possible and throwing a bright light on them.

From Mr. Lloyd George's point of view it was fortunate that Lord Northcliffe wanted to come over here as commissioner during the war. That add other appointments that he might seek, for himself or his brother, were exploited to the full, but carefully, in the papers inspired by the Prime Minister.

When the final sharp break came, Lloyd George's strategy was put into effect promptly. A number of weeks ago he gave to the House of Commons a jeering account of the differences between Northcliffe and himself that might have been an account of a fight between two boys in the street.

The House of Commons was thoroughly amused. If Lloyd George had discussed the questions of principle or fact raised by Northcliffe, he would have strengthened the publisher's position by making it serious. By treating it throughout as a fiend, and taking it jocosely, he prepared the way for his final coup.

SIMPLY QUESTION OF DINNER.

[illegible] that he had anything to do with the cancellation of the invitation to the Washington embassy, and I believe him. In all probability that order came from the Prime Minister himself. He again creates a perfectly ridiculous situation by leaving his antagonist with an issue made out of a question of going to dinner. Then he follows it immediately by a sudden opportunity to make it appear that Northcliffe, or his principal editor, or one of his newspapers (the form of the impression makes little difference) has dragged the dinner into politics.

That is one thing the House of Commons and the country will not stand. Northcliffe's denial for practical purposes makes no difference. There remains too much to explain.

The American has been completely Northcliffe started over here with the intention of controlling the direction taken by the disarmament and far-eastern conference. He certainly intended to use his power to lessen Lloyd George's ability to speak for England at that conference.

Such moves must be serious. If Northcliffe had been let alone to build up a case in which the prime minister appeared as the incarnation of European duplicity, while he himself took the role of the straightforward friend of the United States, he would have had the situation he needed.

MADE SITUATION A FARCE.

But it would not have been the situation the prime minister needed. Hence the beautiful feints by which an intended epic is turned into a farce.

Mr. figure of speech is somewhat mixed. It is intended to convey the thought that in the heavyweight class neither Carpentier nor Jim Corbett has any edge on the prime minister when it comes to footwork, parrying and countering.

Politics is a profession in which technical speed and agility are necessary to survival. Briand comes pretty near to holding second place in these attributes in the Europe of today, at least if we leave the Russians out of the comparison.

Briand has the simple-sounding but difficult job of keeping Poincare out of office by making noises almost as ferocious as those which Poincare makes.

MOVES SWIFTLY.

I do not wish to imply anything in favor of Lloyd George's morals. He does not seem to have any. To the intellectual not a moral pleasure to watch him perform, whether his moves are on the German board or in the little game on the side with Lord Northcliffe.

The most brilliant chess player who ever lived is supposed to have been Paul Morphy. The analysis of his games still gives enormous pleasure. No student of politics can find anything quite so diverting to study in current politics as the swiftness and adroitness of the Welsh lightning.

Twelve Boston Men Lost On Fishing Banks

VANISH IN DORIES IN FOG AT SEA

Captain of Mary De Costa Believes Passing Vessel Rescued Missing Men

Manned only by the captain, a cook and an engineer, the fishing schooner Mary DeCosta arrived in Boston today and reported the loss of twelve of her crew of fifteen men.

The twelve men were lost in a fog on the South Channel Fishing grounds southeast of Cape Cod Sunday morning.

They were: Dennis Boudreau, Raymond Porter, Jack Todd, Noah Porter, Peter Sarett, Joseph Perry, and Leandy Bellevue all of East Boston; Daniel McComisky of Everett; Peter Dutton of Charlestown; and Joe Bernard, Chris White and his brother Philip all of South Boston.

According to Captain Edward Murphy of Malden, commander of the schooner, the missing fishermen put off from the schooner about six o'clock Sunday morning in separate dories.

VANISHED IN FOG.

The fog was so thick, that the remainder of the crew on the schooner could not see the dories after they had gone but a few yards from the side of the vessel. Each fisherman carried with him a small fog horn which he was to blow at regular intervals to keep in touch with the schooner.

Just after the men disappeared in the fog Captain Murphy says a watch came in sight just astern of the schooner. This apparition startled the captain and he made haste to care for the safety of the schooner which he thought for a moment was going on to hit by the battleship.

After the excitement was over the watch waited in vain for some time for a sound from the dories and hearing none he cruised about all Sunday in an attempt to pick up the men.

NO TRACE FOUND.

About 5 o'clock he said the schooner was hit by the tailend of a squall, after which the fog cleared, but no trace of the men could be found.

Monday morning the search was renewed without avail and at noon the captain started back to Boston.

James Lenos, the cook, and Chester Murphy, the engineer, were the only men left on the schooner with the captain.

When they landed at the Fish Pier today the three were worn and almost exhausted from their constant vigil of forty-eight hours.

Captain Murphy stated that he thanks and twelve of the missing men were picked up by some passing vessel and that they will all reach port in safety.

SALEM FIGHTS DUMPING OF REFUSE IN RIVER

Mayor Sullivan and other residents of Salem held a meeting before the State Public Health Council today, asked that National Guard be called to prevent polluting the North River by the dumping of refuse.

William McDonald, chairman of the Salem Health Board, said that he has tried without success to induce the Peabody city government to force the tanneries to obey the health board's regulations.

City Solicitor Horace F. Bachman of Peabody appeared before the officials and said that the Salem sewage system is clogged and backs up into Peabody, thereby forcing city officials to permit manufacturers to discharge waste into the river.

Decision was reserved.

3 HURT, 100 IMPERILLED IN DETROIT TRAIN CRASH

Detroit, Aug. 2.—Three persons were seriously injured and more than a hundred others imperilled when six cars of the Chicago-bound Michigan Central all-Pullman train leaving Detroit at 12:20 a. m. left the tracks at Inkster, near here, early today.

A catastrophe like the one at Porter, Ind., was narrowly averted when east-bound train No. 20, leaving Chicago at 8:40, reached the scene. Although it brushed the side of the wreckage, it was stopped before any additional damage was done.

Fire Closes N. Y. Stock Exchange for Three Hours

By International News Service.

New York, Aug. 2.—Fire broke out in the New York Stock Exchange Building this morning, but was extinguished before it did serious damage.

The blaze originated from crossed electric wires behind an annunciator board. It burned through the walls of the building, but was extinguished before the market opened.

The exchange opened at 10 o'clock, but suspended until 1 p. m., owing to the smoke, which was still in the building.

RAPS FRANCE DUMPING WAR STORES IN U. S.

American war stores sold by the United States government to France are being dumped back on American markets according to information received today by the Bureau of Commercial and Industrial Affairs of the Boston Chamber of Commerce from the New Orleans Association of Commerce.

Investigation of the situation is to be made by the bureau with a view to securing special legislation from Congress to prevent such competition.

The telegram from New Orleans read as follows: "New Orleans Association of Commerce calls your attention to importation through port of New Orleans of American manufactured goods sold the government to France and urgently requests your co-operation in securing enactment of special legislation to prevent the dumping of American war stores disposed of to other countries back on the American market."

SHOWERED WITH FIRE BY METAL POT BLAST

John Thomas of No. 84 Williams street, Roxbury, a furnace tender at the plant of the Eastern Metal Refining Company, Commercial street, Malden, was burned about the face, head and shoulders and eyes, by the explosion of a large melting pot, which deluged him with molten metal.

Thomas was operating a large melting pot when the chute became clogged. He attempted to free the opening when suddenly an explosion occurred, spraying him with the hot metal. Doctors and eye specialists worked over him at the plant in an endeavor to save his eyesight. He was taken to Malden Hospital.

CONVICT DORCHESTER MAN OF CHURCH THEFT

Melvin Hicks of Dorchester, charged in Roxbury court with attempted larceny from a coin box of St. Joseph's Church, Roxbury, a week ago, was found guilty by Judge Hayden and sentenced to two months in the House of Correction.

Sentence was later suspended and he was placed on probation.

RAP APPOINTMENT OF HILL AS U. S. ENVOY

Berlin, Aug. 2.—The Hamburg Nachrichten today printed an editorial protest against the possible appointment of David Jayne Hill as American Ambassador to Germany.

CARUSO DIES IN ITALY

HARVEY IS STAR WITNESS

Assumes Full Responsibility for Acts While He Was Assistant District Attorney

George Stanley Harvey, formerly first assistant district attorney of Middlesex County, took the stand as a witness for the defence today at the trial of District Attorney Nathan A. Tufts in Supreme Court on charges of malfeasance.

Harvey was one of the strongest witnesses yet put on the stand by the defence, taking full responsibility for all his own acts and declaring them justifiable.

He said he had often not prosecuted cases without consulting Tufts.

Harvey said he had not prossed important cases, including municipal ice cases, and knew of at least two other counties where assistant district attorneys assumed this responsibility.

Harvey testified particularly as to his connection with the so-called "Newton arson cases."

TUFTS GRILLED.

Tufts had been on the stand for more than an hour under a grilling cross-examination as to conditions in these cases when he was followed by his former official subordinate and present law partner.

Tufts denied all wrong-doing in the "arson cases."

These cases centre about the burning of two houses on the same lot in Newton. Charles Weisberg confessed he set the fires and was hired by one Joseph Levine to do it. Levine made a statement stating that Joseph Rudnick had engaged him to hire Weisberg. As a result Weisberg, Levine, Joseph Rudnick and his brother Carl, a lawyer, and Benjamin Solomon, wealthy real estate dealer, were indicted.

Weisberg was sent to State Prison but the Levine case was filed and the cases against the alleged men higher up" were not pressed.

Allen charges that Tufts permitted Levine and Solomon and the Rudnicks to escape trial because of improper motives.

Tufts today testified that he failed to prosecute because he thought he had no case against Solomon and the Rudnicks as he thought only Weisberg and Levine were lying.

"ARSON TRUST" CASE.

With this in the testimony Allen pressed Tufts to explain why he filed a case against Levine, who was admittedly a employer of a friend and who Tufts thought was a liar.

Tufts' explanation was that in a battle of wits was the longest sustained cross-examination ever taken part in.

Tufts insisted that the crowded condition of his docket, the impossibility of Weisberg, a State witness, to make, and other proper reasons had determined him to file the case against Levine.

New and important evidence regarding the "arson drawer" grilled District Attorney Tufts' sage as Allen made him on 1917 was put in by the defence today.

Tufts had testified that his father, the late Joseph Tufts of Fitchburg, gave him about $35,000 in cash and securities in 1917, just before he died.

The prosecution had made inquiries intending to cast doubt on the likelihood of a retired ticket taker's having so much money.

Today, records of the city of Fitchburg were introduced to show that in 1897 the city paid the elder Tufts $19,881.30 for the family homestead to be used as a school site.

Attorney-General Allen, in an at-

GIRL SUES SEARLES FOR $2,000,000

Young Searles Defendant in Love Suit by Former Tea-Room Owner

Miss Mary Johnson of Portsmouth, N. H., has brought suit for $2,000,000 damages against Albert Victor Searles in Suffolk County Court, alleging breach of promise to marry. The suit marks the most sensational development yet in the affairs of the young man, who recently received several millions of dollars in the settlement of the estate of his eccentric uncle, Edward F. Searles of Methuen.

Miss Johnson who is about three years old and unusually attractive, declares in her declaration filed in court that she met the young millionaire in February, 1918, at Portsmouth, where she was the owner of a tea room, and Searles is said to have been working as a draftsman for a large steel company.

Less than a month after they met the date declaration charges Searles with a serious offense that should furnish the grounds for the court to act on this suit.

Searles is said to have represented himself to have been a single man and immediately after his introduction to the fair tea-room proprietress he is charged to have become "very ardent." He is said to have promised to marry her within "a reasonable time."

All of which, Miss Johnson declares, caused her to suffer great mental anguish, after investigating circumstances today, reported a decision of suicide. He finds that Miss Oakes, who had been ill for several months, leaped from the steamboat [illegible] Georgia between New York and Providence.

RELAPSE IS FATAL TO TENOR

Peritonitis Develops Following Operation for an Abscess

By International News Service.

Naples, Aug. 2.—The golden voice of Enrico Caruso is stilled forever. The gallant and spectacular fight which the world famous tenor had waged against disease ended early this morning when he died here from acute peritonitis.

Mrs. Caruso was at the bedside. Caruso's death was not unexpected. The attending specialists had announced last night that the patient was sinking rapidly and that he could barely survive another twenty-four hours, even if he held out that long.

FOUR SPECIALISTS RETAINED.

At midnight it was announced that Caruso was dying. His strength was ebbing swiftly and already the death coma was hovering over him. The physicians were in constant attendance and continuously administered restoratives, but the battle was ended.

Caruso became ill last week and was brought from Sorrento to this city, where the facilities for treatment were better.

Four specialists were retained. On

TENOR FAILS TO RALLY AFTER SURGICAL OPERATION

diagnosis it was found that the singer was suffering from an abscess between the liver and the diaphragm. Caruso was very weak and his lungs had suffered from the strain of pneumonia. Under these circumstances operation was decided on as the only means of saving his life.

Acute peritonitis followed the operation and Caruso's condition grew steadily worse over Sunday and Monday. He knew that death was near, but maintained his old-time cheerfulness.

Mrs. Caruso and the singer's brother were constantly at the bedside, giving such comfort as they could.

By Monday night Caruso's heart was fluttering so feebly that camphor was administered. It was reported also that oxygen was administered.

Caruso's last illness developed at a time when he was believed to be recovering from his long illness and numerous operations in New York last Winter. He told his friends that he was regaining his vigor and was already looking forward to a successful season with the Metropolitan Opera in New York next Winter.

CABLEGRAMS OF CONDOLENCE.

Word of Caruso's death was immediately called to friends in New York by Mrs. Caruso and a few hours later cablegrams of condolence began arriving.

No arrangements have yet been made for the funeral but it is believed that he will be buried near his old home in Italy.

Not only music lovers but persons prominent in many other walks of life felt the blow of Caruso's death. This was shown from the number of cablegrams that continued to pour in this afternoon. They came from business men and financiers as well as from grand opera stars. The music world of the entire globe was cast into gloom.

Caruso, before his final illness, had been living quietly in his villa at Sorrento with Mrs. Caruso and his baby daughter Gloria.

He was under orders from his specialists to engage in no arduous exercises that would tax his strength and he spent much of his time in his garden or in motoring along the beautiful Italian highways. He kept in close touch with friends in New York and kept them informed of his progress back to health. His chief delight was playing with his little daughter Gloria, who was his pet and the apple of his eye.

Mrs. Caruso felt the blow of her husband's death keenly. She wept as she recounted to friends the trials and troubles that her husband had passed through during the past year and a half. Caruso and his wife were a most devoted couple, and during their stay at Sorrento were inseparable. It is understood that Mrs. Caruso will return to America after her husband's burial.

Broadway Deeply Touched By News of Star's Death

By International News Service.

New York, Aug. 2.—"Enrico died this morning."

Thus, in a brief cable message, Mrs. Enrico Caruso, now in Naples, advised some friend, Constant J. Speros, of No. 25 West Eighty-eighth street, this city, of the passing of the famous tenor.

The cable was dated "Naples, 8 a. m." It was received here shortly before 10 o'clock. Mr. Speros immediately notified the Metropolitan Opera House.

Mrs. Caruso's cable was the first direct word received here confirming the report of Caruso's death.

Broadway was touched deeply in its real heart beneath the paint and the bright lights, by word that its beloved star was dead.

The famous tenor's fellow artists of the opera had fled the heat of the city, but his friends and admirers in the orchestra and gallery seats were saddened by the news, and on every side, in theatrical circles today were heard expressions of sympathy and regret.

From "Little Italy," where Caruso was almost a god, came hundreds of his fellow countrymen to get the news from bulletin boards.

Behind the scenes at the Metropolitan Opera House, stage hands and carpenters, busy preparing the vast stage where Caruses were so many triumphs, stopped their work to gather and discuss the tenor's death.

As the day wore on and morning bulletins reached the opera house, little groups of Italians gathered side by side, waiting to hear the latest word of their idol. Alphonse, press agent during the absence of Billy Guard, was distracted with hundreds of phone calls from friends and admirers of Caruso.

Broadway sorrowed, but in Little Italy grief at the tenor's death was marked by frank and open tears. Little children who had been brought up to regard Caruso as greater than the President, wept in the streets. Shutters were up and shop doors were locked for the day. Little Italy's population was in mourning.

Italian flags were at half-mast from many windows. Never in his career as a star had the world famous tenor received a truer or more fervent tribute than today, when word of his death reached the Italian quarter.

Caruso Promised to "Sing Forever in Heaven"

New York, Aug. 2.—Enrico Caruso was not afraid of death. He had a splendid vision of the hereafter. Speaking at the Friars' Club here five years ago, the great singer said:

"I promise you that when I go to Heaven I shall sing forever"

Stricken With Pleurisy In February Last

Enrico Caruso was stricken with pleurisy in New York last February, followed by an attack of heart trouble, and for five months was confined to his bed.

A staff of physicians ministered to the golden-voiced singer, and his wife never left his side during the first two days, maintaining a sleepless vigil. From all parts of the world messages of hope and cheer were received, princes and paupers, kings and street sweepers pouring in their desire that the tenor might recover.

On May 28, Caruso, weak but happy, sailed for Italy with his wife and baby Gloria, declaring that he should remain until he regained his strength.

On July 7 a dispatch from Florence said that Caruso was rapidly improving and was taking on weight.

When Heinrich Conried, impresario of the Metropolitan Opera House, wanted the "greatest Italian tenor," he engaged Enrico Caruso.

For years before Caruso had been growing steadily in fame throughout Europe, but that was dimmed to candle-glow by the burst of brilliance following his appearance on the stage at the New York playhouse as the Duke in "Rigoletto."

It was a tremendous jump he had made from his childhood as the son of a poor man in Milan, Italy. Caruso himself denied that his father was a peddler and that his mother had sold herbs in the streets of his native city, and declared his father was a mechanic, who subsequently rose to be superintendent of a plant in Milan. But whichever story is true, the birth of the great singer was humble enough.

THE BROKEN TENOR.

He was born in 1873, one of several brothers and sisters, and from youth he sang and sang beautifully. Sometimes his voice was heard in the streets and sometimes in the minor theatres and opera houses of Milan and Florence.

From the first trouble and turmoil appointed to be inseparable from his art. He signed a contract with a music teacher in Milan, agreeing to give 25 per cent. of all money paid him for singing.

Later that contract caused him untold trouble, but the affair finally was settled and Caruso went on his upward climb.

After winning more or less success in Italy, Caruso for a time bore the nickname of "The Broken Tenor," because of the difficulty he appeared to have in finding one style or one volume and force of his voice, he went to Russia.

There the Czar heard and approved him. That was his real start.

South American things heard him and went wild over his voice, and then came his debut in New York, and the music world was at his feet. His headquarters remained there until his death.

"MONKEY HOUSE" EPISODE.

But colorful as was his artistic career, it pales to shadowy gray compared with the ruddy tints of his private life. Women were his bane.

Shortly after his arrival in New York, and when his operatic star was soaring high, musical and artistic circles were shocked by the publicity given the Anti Bright case. Senora Gilda or Anita Ghichetti, the beautiful mother of his two sons, Rudolfo, now a soldier in the Italian army, and Enrico, junior, a student at Culver Military School, in Indiana.

Some years later came the episode of the "Monkey House" in Central Park, when he was accused of annoying a woman named "Mrs. Hannah Graham." After flatly denying the charge, Caruso finally paid a small fine and the case was dropped.

CARUSO WANTED TO DIE AT HIS ZENITH

Had Greatest Natural Voice in the World, Declares McIsaac

By FRED J. McISAAC.

Some years ago Caruso invited me to breakfast with him during a visit of the Metropolitan Opera Company to Boston. Breakfast was a favorite time for the great tenor to entertain friends and it usually took place about 1130 a. m.

The singer was then in his golden prime. He was full of fun, making jokes about his friends in the troupe, playing little tricks on the party at table, and finally, getting a menu card, he drew rapid but strikingly effective cartoons of several of us.

And soudenly turned the conversation into a minor key. "What are you going to do when you cannot sing any more? he was asked.

Caruso grew sad immediately. "I have thought of that often. I would like to die at the height of my fame, some night when I had just sung Valentine, Rigoletto. But I suppose that cannot be. You may be sure that I will not hang around opera house when I lose the glory of a voice, like so many unfortunate musicians.

NO PEACEFUL EVENING.

"No, I have always been very careful to have my press clippings pasted up. I have dozens of huge scrap books with comments on my voice in all languages. In Italy I have a beautiful villa. I shall retire there and spend my declining years in comfort. When I feel sad I shall open my press books, put a record on the phonograph, and remember that I was once the greatest tenor in the world."

Caruso had no chance for this peaceful evening of life. He went as he had hoped, suddenly, while he was still a great tenor.

And how great a figure was Caruso?

I think it will be remembered that he was the greatest tenor who ever lived, greater than Mario, Tamagno, De Reszke, or any of the celebrities of the past century or two.

GREATEST NATURAL VOICE

His was the greatest natural voice in the world. He sang freely, easily, openly, without effort or strain. He had no method. Probably could not have explained how he sang.

Only recently Evelyn Scotney, coloratura soprano of the Metropolitan, one a great Boston favorite, who sang opposite Caruso many times, declared:

"The greatest admirers of Caruso were singers like himself who marveled at the ease with which he could do anything and the open upon his score. The general public worshipped him because of his great tones, but the admired him for his really great art. No singer that I have ever heard could sing with the utter freedom and strain of Caruso.

It happened that Evelyn Scotney was singing the coloratura role in Elixer of Love when Caruso had the hemorrhage of the throat which caused him to collapse and as she was being embraced by him at the moment, the blood of Caruso ruined a gown.

HIS LAST APPEARANCE.

"I have never had that gown cleaned," declared Mme. Scotney.

Caruso first came to the Metropolitan nearly a quarter of a century ago. For that long time he reigned absolutely supreme. Other tenors were discovered and declared to be his successors. Bonci, Constantino, Muratinelli were all groomed for his place, but when they joined the Metropolitan and sang under the same conditions Caruso outsang them all.

For five or six years past he had been slipping, but only by comparison with his own great past. We knew he was not the Caruso of old but there were no successors for him. The Metropolitan has not tried to secure a tenor to succeed him. Instead, that company has engaged Titta Ruffo, the great Italian baritone, and Rosa Raisa, the coloratura soprano, hoping that these two great artists may in a measure atone for the disappearance of Caruso.

CITY PAID $19,861 TO TUFTS' FATHER FOR SCHOOL SITE

Attorney Melvin M. Johnson, of counsel for the defence, read a letter at the Tufts trial today from City Treasurer John C. Dexter of Fitchburg, dated July 29.

It was in answer to a query by Tufts' counsel, and was addressed to Tufts. It stated that records in Dexter's office showed that on July 18, 1893, the city of Fitchburg paid to Joseph A. Tufts, Tufts' father, $19,861.95 for the Tufts homestead, to be used as a school site.

Attorney-General Allen announced that there was a mortgage of $4,000 on the house at that time.

The record corroborated Tufts' testimony that his father received about $20,000 from Fitchburg.

tempt to offset the importance of this corroboration, announced that he could show that there was a $4,000 mortgage on the house at the time.

This entire line of testimony was brought out when the prosecution asked Tufts to account for deposits of thousands of dollars in Greater Boston banks early in 1917, just after the Minuteman Manor affair.

Court started the trial an hour late today, owing to a conference of the seven Supreme Court Justices relative to another case.

At 10:30 the court came in and Chief Justice Rugg made an explanation concerning a ruling of the court made on July 21 relative to the powers of an assistant district attorney to act pro or die cases and the exclusion of evidence of a voice, not processed or filed, but in which District Attorney Tufts had no personal knowledge.

Chief Justice Rugg explained that in order that there would be no misunderstanding of the ruling, purely a question of law, it would remain open for further argument and discussion at any time.

Attorney Melvin M. Johnson of counsel for the defense read a letter from City Treasurer John C. Dexter of Fitchburg, dated July 29.

It was in answer to a query by Tufts' counsel, and was addressed to Tufts. It states that the records in Dexter's office showed that on July 18, 1893, the city of Fitchburg paid to Joseph A. Tufts, Tufts' father, $19,-861.95 for the Tufts homestead, to be used as a school site.

CORROBORATES TUFTS.

Attorney-General Allen announced that there was a mortgage of $4,000 on the house at that time.

Johnson, in reading the letter, said counsel for the prosecution had agreed that the letter would be sufficient and Dexter need not be called.

This corroborated Tufts' testimony that his father received about $20,000 from Fitchburg.

Joseph Rudnick, on the stand at adjournment yesterday, was recalled to testify as to the so-called arson cases.

Rudnick was cross-examined by Attorney-General Allen.

Q—I understand that after the foreclosure and before Levine sold Ere Levine had no financial interest in the property? A.—No.

Q—And after the foreclosure there were four insurance policies on the property, totalling $20,000? A.—I think so.

INSURANCE DROPPED.

Q—After the foreclosure and before the fire do you recall that an insurance policy for $5,000 with the Northern Insurance Company was dropped? A.—I don't know anything about it.

Q—Don't you know that the insurance was dropped from $20,000 to $15,000? A.—No.

Q—Didn't you tell Levine? A.—Not a word to anybody.

Q—Was the building worth $22,000? A.—All that and more.

Q—Then you know no reason why it was reduced to $15,000? A.—I do not.

George I. Rudnick and Abraham I. Rudnick, brothers-in-law of Levine, one of the central figures in the so-called arson plot, testified that Levine had asked them separately to go and see Joseph Rudnick and see if they couldn't get some money from him.

Both said they had refused. Abraham said he had told Levine that he was not the person to do about any blackmail.

Questioned by Allen as to whether he thought it was blackmail to ask a friend for money, he answered that he said "I knew he (Levine) was indicted and it sounded like blackmail to me."

Inspector Edward P. O'Halloran of the Newton police took the stand.

Q—Were you employed by either Rudnick or Solomon in this case? A.—I never was hired while in the police department.

PAID EXPENSES.

Q—Did you go to Philadelphia with Solomon? A.—Yes.

Q—Under whose orders? A.—I had a warrant from Newton against Charles Welsberg (one of the alleged arson trust).

Q—And were the circumstances of the issuing of a warrant? A.—Information was obtained from Patrolman Cooney, officer on the fire, who saw Welsberg leave the house after the fire.

Q—What information did you get that Welsberg had gone to Philadelphia? A.—Solomon learned Welsberg had left Boston and gone there.

He said while he was with Solomon he had adroitly cross-questioned him to find out whether he might not have some connection with the fire. He was convinced Solomon was innocent.

HEARD HE SET FIRE.

Q—Did you hear Carl Rudnick testify that you told him Tufts was going to indict all of them? A.—I did not hear that.

Q—Did you have any information that they were all going to be indicted before you learned of the indictments upon your return from Philadelphia? A.—It was a great surprise to me. I had not heard of it before.

Q—Did you investigate Welsberg?

Seeking a Race of Men With Tails

Scientists are preparing to penetrate the deepest jungles of New Guinea. How their discoveries may upset the theory that man is descended from the ape is told in next Sunday's Advertiser.

A.—Yes, and I could not get the connection between him and the others.

Q—Did you learn that somebody had wired him to set the fire? A.—I heard he had set the fire, but I could not find the reason, or with whom he was connected.

Q—Were you not aware that State Officer Hale was working on the case for the fire marshal's office? A.—I understood he was working on it.

Q—Did you have any talk with him about the case? A.—I had one short talk.

Q—Did you give him any information about this fire? A.—He did not ask for it.

DISAGREED WITH HALE.

Q—Did you, while you were investigating this fire, express an opinion of your chief of police, give Hale any information about it? A.—No.

Q—Did you not tell Hale Welsberg was in Philadelphia? A.—He knows that and I had a telegram on it February, and, furthermore, I did not feel under obligations to tell him anything.

Q—Why not? A.—Because he insulted me in my own house. He came in and threw down his hat and began to talk insultingly. I gave him a minute to leave and he left.

Q—What did he say? A.—He said something about myself.

LOOKED UP LEVINE.

Q—Did you consider that a personal difference with State officer Hale would justify you, as a police officer, not to report the information you gave to the State authorities? A.—I was reporting to my chief of police.

Q—But you knew that Officer Hale represented the fire marshal's office and that Deputy Fire Chief Neal did information? A.—I was working under the orders of the chief.

Q—Then Hale was beginning to the end of your investigation of this fire you gave no information to the State? A.—Not after February 21.

Q—When Joseph Levine gave a statement to you before that you noted? A.—Not until some time later.

Q—Were you asked to investigate that statement? A.—No.

Q—Did you ever investigate Levine in any way? A.—I looked him up earlier and found he had been associated with the others.

Q—Did you tell Attorney? A.—Yes, I was admitted last year.

REPORTED TO TUFTS.

Redirect examination

Q—Did you report all about Levine to Tufts? A.—Yes. I told him Levine had gone into bankruptcy and that he had had a Chief Neal had told about the Rudnicks and Solomon and their real estate operations.

Q—Did you report on all your inquiries to the chief of police and to Tufts? A.—Yes.

Attorney-General Allen: Q—Did you make any reports in writing? A.—Yes. I sent one to the chief of police from Philadelphia.

Q—Did you ever make any other report in writing to Tufts or the chief of police? A.—I can't recall that I ever did.

TUFTS RECALLED.

District Attorney Tufts was recalled.

Q—When did you first hear of these cases? A.—I found on the January list in my first term cases against the Rudnicks, Solomon and Levine.

Q—Did you ever have further information about them? A.—Yes. State Officer Hale talked with me. He said there was a bad situation in Newton. He said another fire had occurred on the same premises. The fire which preceded it had caused the predecessor. Corcoran, to take action before the Grand Jury. He said that if he ever got to the bottom of the few cases before the grand jury. I referred him to the Assistant District Attorney and advised him to give Harvey all the facts. Hale told me about a conference. I had interviews with other witnesses in connection with the arson case.

Q—With whom? A.—I had several talks with Attorney Thomas W. Proctor. I also talked with Mr. Rudnick, whom I assumed was Carl Rudnick. This was after indictments had been returned in the case. He told me he had heard that he and his associates were all to be or had been indicted.

He told me he was a member of the bar and if he had already been indicted he hoped that explanes would not issue. I told him that Inspector O'Halloran, who told me that to his opinion the Rudnicks and Solomon were guilty. He said Hale was chasing these fellows and he wanted to tell me his side of the story.

SENT HIM TO HARVEY.

O'Halloran said he had been assigned to the case by the chief of police of Newton and had investigated the Rudnicks and Solomon and was convinced they had nothing to do with the fire. He deprecated the proceedings against them. I told him to see Harvey.

Q—Did you ever talk with Levine? A.—No.

Q—Did you ever talk with his attorney? A.—Yes; with Attorney Cannon. He told me Levine was innocent and that Welsberg was the one thing. He said State Officer Hale thought they were all guilty and was insisting that Levine confess. Cannon said Hale told him if he could get Welsberg he could clean up the whole situation.

August fur selling a great success

YESTERDAY we did more business in furs than in any other day in our history.

We did more than twice as much business as the corresponding day last year.

The fact that furs cost one-half last year's prices and that the wanted furs were featured explains the success.

Plenty today of August savings in Hudson seal (dyed muskrat), marmot, muskrat and raccoon; the wanted coats, which made yesterday such a great success.

AMERICAN WOMAN BARES DEATH THREATS IN RUSSIAN PRISON

STARVED IN SOVIET BONDAGE

Eliz. Aug. 2—In an intensely dramatic recital of her life in Russian prisons, which has lasted with some intermissions for fifteen months, Mrs. Marguerite E. Harrison, of Baltimore, who was released from the Novesski Prison Hospital at Moscow last Thursday, through the efforts of Senator Joseph L. France, of Maryland, today told of solitary confinement, repeated warnings that the offense with which she was charged was punishable with death, of hunger, cold and hopelessness, until suddenly freedom came like a flash of light from a long black sky.

Senator France reports that his difficulty in obtaining her release was enormously increased because of the impatience of the officials with whom he pleaded and argued over America's attitude in refusing to deal with the Soviet Republic. They pointed out that the nationals of other countries had been released without difficulty and dwelt on the stubbornness of the United States as the bar to the freedom of its own citizens.

"My first arrest," said Mrs. Harrison, when she was sufficiently rested to detail the events which succeeded her crossing of the Polish frontier in February, 1920, "was on the charge that I had crossed without a passport, and that I had been feeding the American and British prisoners. That I was in communication with persons hostile to the Soviet was absolutely true, and during my repeated examinations I was left in not the least doubt that mine was a capital offence.

"Many of the endless monotony, weariness and depression of my prison life, during which sometimes I was even denied the privilege of reading, and there was no way of passing the time except by dwelling upon the past and wondering in a hopeless way about the future, there flashed a few spots of hope, rumors of my release. I was frequently told that all the American prisoners would be set at liberty whenever their own country should request it, but such flashes of hope proved but Will-o-the-Wisps; release never came and each time the old depression and hopelessness settled down upon me again.

"Then on the afternoon of July 23, when the future seemed at its grayest, I was brought the card of Senator Joseph L. France, of Maryland—my own State. It seemed like a miracle, and for a moment my senses reeled. The steeled composure which I had taught myself to wear through those many long months, suddenly gave way. I don't think I cried, but I am well aware that my knees became unsteady and undependable and I had to sit down for a few moments to recover my strength and composure, before being led to the commandant's office where I was to meet the Senator.

"On Wednesday night came a new excitement, and I was told that I was to be taken to Tcheka (the Soviet Inquisition) for a new examination.

"I thought it was to be just another of the long series of questionings to which I had been subjected since my first arrest.

"The nurse in charge of me forbade my leaving the hospital that night and so the hearing was postponed until the morning. The night was largely devoted to a careful search by a Soviet agent of such personal belongings as I had retained.

"In the morning I was given only a brief examination and was returned to the hospital, but it seemed that by lot was to be lightened even then, for the interdict under which I had suffered for so long a period was permitted to converse with those around me.

"And then came freedom.

"Late Thursday afternoon, that wonderful July 28, I was told to pack up my belongings, and my guard hinted that I was to be allowed to return to America.

"In a tremor of excitement, first hoping and then fearing, I prepared for whatever might come, but I knew nothing surely of my destination until I arrived at the railroad station where Senator France found me."

Pearl White and Crane Wilbur, whose divorces have led to an investigation in Providence and declaration that the Rhode Island capital does not care to become a second Reno.

MOVIE DIVORCES STIR STORM IN RHODE ISLAND

State Starts Probe on Pearl White and Crane Wilbur Cases

The divorces granted within two days of each other to Pearl White and Crane Wilbur, motion picture stars, at Providence, will be investigated by the Rhode Island Bar Association.

It was said there is some question as to the residences of the stars, and if the investigation reveals the fact that perjury has been committed, prosecution will be started by Attorney-General Rice.

"We don't wish to make Providence a second Reno," one official remarked in commenting on the prospective action of the Bar Association. In the meantime a rumor that the couple would marry was denied by Miss White.

DIVORCED ARMY MAJOR.

Miss White was granted a divorce from Wallace McCutcheon, former army major, on July 8, on the grounds of neglect to provide. In a deposition read at the trial, the screen beauty said she had lived at the New Mathewson Hotel, Narragansett Pier, during 1919, and on Weybosset street, Providence the greater part of the preceding year.

Two days later Wilbur was freed from Florence D. Wilbur of the Beach, California on the grounds of gross misbehavior. He then gave his address as No. 135 Hamilton street, Providence.

Frank O. Miles, owner of the house who said he built it in 1917 and had lived there since, declared Wilbur never had a residence at the house as a tenant or boarder.

The Rhode Island law provides that parties to a divorce must be domiciled in Rhode Island for two years previous to the divorce and also must show intent to live there.

U. S. AUTHORITIES MAY ACT.

Miss White paid no Federal income tax in Providence or anywhere else in the state, and it is possible that the Federal authorities may take action.

The Bar Association action, said to have been influenced by the proceedings in Nevada in connection with the divorce of Mary Pickford and Owen Moore, will deal largely with the attitude of counsel in the two cases. An attempt will be made to determine if the attorneys had any reason to doubt the statements of their clients, if negligence is shown action will follow.

Miss White, when questioned regarding the matter, said:

"They talked a heap about investigating Mary Pickford's divorce from Owen Moore, but it never came to anything. Neither will this foolish report." Asked if she intended to marry Wilbur, she replied: "That's more nonsense."

BANK RUN ENDS; $1,400,000 PAID OUT

Governor Calls Conference; Press Inquiry Into Cause

The run on the Boston Five Cents Savings Bank, which started last Friday and forced payment of more than $1,400,000, came to a dwindling end shortly after noon today.

At half-past one o'clock, half an hour before the bank was to close for the day, there were hardly a dozen depositors in the line, which during the run has numbered as high as a thousand.

Joseph C. Holmes, treasurer of the bank, announced that the day's business had approximated normal and that he expected that by tomorrow the bank would be on a routine basis.

According to Mr. Holmes, scores of depositors have come forward today to make deposits and the total of the money taken in by the institution was about normal.

While the run was petering out rapidly, bank officials and the police continued their investigation of the cause of the run. Neither Mr. Holmes nor any of the other officers of the bank would admit it, but it was learned that the bank has set a number of special investigators to work, running down those responsible for the rumors that started the trouble.

A conference called by Governor Cox, at which Bank Commissioner Allen, Governor Moss, of the local Federal Reserve Bank, Mayor Peters and President Evans of the Savings Bank were present, lasted for more than an hour today.

At the end of about forty-five minutes, President Evans and Mayor Peters left the room, while the others continued their talk behind closed doors. It was expected that Governor Cox would issue a statement later.

SEARLES SUED BY GIRL FOR $2,000,000

Theatre, New York. In another year he went into this work more extensively, forming a partnership with Sydney Chidlex, with offices in New York and Boston.

WORK IN BOSTON THEATRES.

The work of this firm may be seen in the Arlington and Keith's theatres in this city, and in other buildings throughout the country.

Mr. Searles became interested in book illustrating, and later took up decoration of public schools for celebrations.

In 1913 Searles went to Portsmouth, N. H., to establish a residence in order that he might obtain a divorce from his wife, then a resident of Providence, R. I. He obtained work in the shipyards, but was laid off in the Winter and was forced to depend on the kindness of friends for food and fuel.

Shortly after the death of his uncle and discovery that he had been left only $250,000, Victor Searles began suit to break the will, employing an imposing array of legal talent.

ENGLISH DIVORCE RATE TREBLES IN SIX YEARS

Concord, N. H., Aug. 2.—Greater part of the divorce suits heard during 1920 in state were no children of the marriage.

Husbands are more faithful than wives.

The first five years of married life are the easiest.

These startling facts are gleaned from a collection of official statistics issued as a White-paper by the Home Office.

The number of divorce suits rose from 2,483 in 1918 to 3,762 in 1919, an increase in one year of 51½ per cent. The total for 1919 was three and a half times higher than that of 1913.

The most sensational comparison made in the report is that in which the divorce petitions are classified as follows:

Petitions by husbands..... 4,122
Petitions by wives..... 1,659

CONNECTICUT ANGLERS HAVE BIG FISH STORIES

Greenville, Ct., Aug. 2.—The big fish have not all been caught as yet, as local anglers report bass, 5.5 out black bs s in great numbers and of enormous size, in the Pautuxet, Yantic and Quinebaug rivers. It's a common thing for a party of anglers to bring in a couple of dozen beauties many of which are over five pounds in weight. The largest, caught by L. H. Norman in the local waters, weighed 6 1-2 pounds. Cy Simino of Taftville caught three near Baltic, weighing 3 1-4 pounds in all.

BEAUTY DRIVEN TO HER DEATH BY DRUGS

Sarah Cowen's End Declared Suicidal, and Police Ignore Male Companion

New York, Aug. 2.—"There is no police action to be taken. The young woman died from poison, self-administered."

This was the final word in the history of the life of the once beautiful Sarah Cambellina Cowen, Baltimore belle, daughter of a former president of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. She died Sunday in a New York hotel, a confirmed drug addict.

Although she inherited wealth said to amount to as much as $2,500,000, she died in poverty. Relatives who came to claim her remains paid her hotel bill and took her body back to Maryland, where she will be buried.

WAS SOCIAL QUEEN.

Twelve years ago she was a social queen in the younger set in Baltimore. About nine years ago she flared into the great White Way, according to stories of her career which are told along Broadway. Then she had jewels and furs worth hundreds of thousands, and she had money to buy gay dinners and furnish lively times for the fast set.

Last Thursday night she registered at the Hotel Maryland as "Mr. and Mrs. S. Cowen, Baltimore." Her companion was a chauffeur. He is known to the police but it is not probable that there will be any further investigation. The inquest established that the one time millionairess was in poverty and discouraged by her own weakness in the long fight to shake off the grip of cocaine, morphine, heroin, and the rest of the list of narcotics which brought her social and financial ruin.

Her father was John K. Cowen, then president of the B. & O. He surrounded his family with every luxury that great wealth could procure, and to his hospitable home came great men who dandled little Sarah on their knees. Among them was former President Cleveland who was a guest at the Cowen Summer home at Mount Point, Nantucket, Mass.

PROVIDENCE CHIEF, SICK OF "FLIVVER," TO QUIT

Providence, R. I., Aug. 2.—Bodies of Weeden, for forty-one years a member of the fire department and chief of the Providence department since 1906, will retire on a pension on Saturday because he is "sick of riding around in a flivver."

The chief used to ride around in first a large, speedy machine, but it was sent away for repairs more than a year ago. He was assigned the truck in the meanwhile and has been using it ever since, the fire commissioners having sold the larger machine when it was fixed.

INDIANAPOLIS PASTOR CALLED TO MANCHESTER

Manchester, N. H., Aug. 2.—A call has been extended by a committee representing the Franklin Street Congregational Church and Society to the Rev. Clarence Edward Rice of Indianapolis. Dr. Reidenbach preached at the service Sunday, and at a meeting of the committee after the service it was voted unanimously to extend the call.

It is planned that Dr. Burton W. Lockhart, who resigned recently after twenty-five years as pastor of the church, shall remain as pastor emeritus of the church.

Powell went fishing. He stood in shallow water. A snake dance began when a moccasin crawled up his leg. With simultaneous thought and action, Powell decided the trousers were too small for both himself and the snake. Women nearby didn't understand the details and screamed hysterically as "pantless" Mr. Powell ran panting by.

BIG SEWER BREAKS IN MANCHESTER

Manchester, N. H., Aug. 2.—The largest trunk line sewer in the city weakened by the rush of water coming from the heavy showers of the past few days caved in under a large area near the Boston & Maine roundhouse for a considerable distance, letting a flood of water twenty feet deep over the bank and into the Merrimac River. It will cost several thousand dollars to repair the damage.

SEIZE FIRST RUM SHIP NEAR NEW YORK

Gloucester Vessel Believed Mysterious "Flying Dutchman"

By International News Service.

New York, Aug. 2.—The first alleged rum-runner of the season to be captured here was towed into this port today by the revenue cutter Seneca and now lies anchored off Sunskinville, Staten Island, under the Seneca's guns. She is the schooner of Henry L. Marshall, originally from Gloucester, Mass.

Her master claims she had been transferred from American to British registry, but thus far has failed to produce papers to prove it.

Her capture was effected by an all night hunt by the Seneca and other revenue craft.

After a considerable chase the aged rum-runner was overhauled just outside the three-mile limit. The coast authorities expressed the belief that the vessel is the same that has been [illegible] them for months. They think she is the flying Dutchman, whose strange movements have been variously reported in numerous spots that have been encountered here and in the way between Bermuda and Atlantic ports.

Underspeeding Costs Driver $100 Fine in Lynn

Driving a machine so slowly that traffic became congested led to the arrest of Arthur Gorman of Everett in Lynn last night.

In Lynn district court today he was fined $100 for operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor.

Patrolman Edward Morrissey, who arrested Gorman, said that Gorman was traveling at the rate of four miles an hour on Broadway, and this pace resulted in traffic congestion.

Investigating, the officer said he found Gorman under the influence.

SAYS SHE WAS KIDNAPED BY HUSBAND

Providence Housekeeper Alleges He Took Her From Bed and Kept Her Prisoner

Providence, Aug. 2.—Police of Providence today are investigating a charge of kidnaping brought by Mrs. Marjorie Burke, housekeeper for Archie Chananlon, of No. 134 Broadway, against her husband, William Burke, alias Giuseppe Iosin.

Mrs. Burke reported that while asleep in her room at the Broadway house she was attacked by her husband and eight men, who wrapped her in a bed sheet, and after taking this given her by her keeper to put the rest, carried her to a waiting automobile and took her to Springfield, Mass.

There, she alleges, she was kept a close prisoner, but managed to escape when the lookout went to sleep.

She says that she walked to the depot, caught a train to Worcester and from there came to Providence by taxi.

SPRINGFIELD TEACHERS' PAY HIGH, SAYS MAYOR

Springfield, Aug. 2.—Public school teachers here get more pay than instructors at Yale or Wellesley, declared Mayor Edwin P. Leonard. The statement was given out by the Mayor in support of his opposition to increasing teachers' pay.

According to Mayor Leonard's statement few Yale instructors were paid $4,000 or over in 1920, and many less than $1,800. Wellesley's rate was much lower than this city's. Here the minimum is $1,000, and many get more than $4,000.

BLUE HILL SNAKE STINGS ITS CAPTOR

Francis Manning of Manchester, N. H., reported he was bitten by a copperhead snake he had captured on the Blue Hill Reservation while visiting Boston. He is in a serious condition at his home in Manchester, but doctors say he has a good chance to recover.

Manning had captured the reptile and had it in a bag when it struck through and buried its fangs in one of his fingers. He cut the wound with a razor, which the doctors say, probably saved his life. He was bitten by a rattle snake he had captured about a year ago.

GLOUCESTER FISHERMAN LEAPS TO HIS DEATH

William Porter, twenty-nine years old, of Gloucester, a member of the crew of the fishing schooner Polly-anna, jumped overboard in a fit of temporary insanity early this morning, it was reported when the vessel arrived at the Fish Pier with her flag at half-mast. Porter left a wife and two young sons, according to his body, before leaping into the sea, his mates said.

WOMEN BATTLE WITH KNIVES IN LYNN

One Combatant Arrested With Blood Flowing Freely From Three Wounds

Armed with broad knives, four Italian women fought a vicious battle before a crowd of people on their way to work on Alley street, Lynn, today.

The encounter was ended by the arrival of the police, who arrested one woman who was cut severely in three places and later sent another from N. Narrow Gauge train Boston-bound. The other two combatants escaped.

Andronetti Delbois was treated at the Lynn Hospital for cuts on the shoulder, wrist and right arm, and was later arrested, charged with assault.

Filomini Dona, an elderly woman, was taken from a train, stopped by the police before it reached West Lynn, and charged with assault and battery with a dangerous weapon.

The women, all of whom are believed to live in the vicinity of Alley street, became engaged in the encounter in front of the home of one of them. The argument became heated, and culminated in the women rushing into their homes to obtain bread knives, which they used on each other, and a wild melee started.

Passers-by, witnessing the savage fray being waged, stopped in amazement and soon a good-sized crowd had formed. Someone telephoned the police, and a squad of officers was rushed to the scene.

As the police rounded into Alley street from Pleasant street, three of the women fled. Andronetti Delbois, with blood flowing from her wounds, stood her ground and was arrested. The police were unable to learn the cause of the trouble, as the two women arrested were unable to speak English.

TWO ARRESTED AFTER SHOT FIRED AT TAXI

Charles O'Connell of Revere Beach boulevard, according to the police, after stopping from a taxicab at Ocean and Chester avenues, walked to the rear and aimed a bullet from a revolver through the car, narrowly missing the chauffeur and O'Connell's company. Willis C. Jenkins, No. 51 Indiana terrace, Newton, James A. Glover, of No. 240 Huntington avenue, Hyde Park, were arrested by Patrolman Amos Macauley and, after a chase of half a mile overtook his former passenger on Huntington avenue.

Both were arrested. Jenkins is charged with drunkenness and O'Connell with drunkenness, assault and battery with a loaded weapon and with carrying a pistol without a permit. The driver was cut by flying glass when the bullet passed through the windshield.

MISSING CHAUFFEUR EXPLAINS ABSENCE

Dike-White, Dedham chauffeur, reported to the Providence police as missing after the wrecking derrick on his auto truck Sunday, has returned home with an explanation of his disappearance.

White says that after getting a Providence truck on tow the stranded machine home he went to supper at Rocky Point.

"When I came out the hired truck and the truck that had accompanied me from Dedham were both gone. I spent the night there and went to Providence in the morning. Then I came home to Dedham, arriving Monday morning shortly before noon."

Miss Catherine McLeish and Miss Mary Vacary, both alibis of Dedham, who were in the party White was driving, were reported to the Providence police as missing. They also purported home yesterday, with the explanation that they had missed the homeward-bound trucks and had spent the night in Providence.

NOTED EQUESTRIENNE WINS DIVORCE SPEEDILY

Omaha, Aug. 2.—Justice was the scandals of Mercury Row in Circuit Court when Mrs. E. John Brandeis, noted Chicago horsewoman, was granted a divorce from E. J. Brandeis, Omaha millionaire, within twenty-four hours. Mrs. Brandeis arrived here from San Francisco one Sunday evening and the very next evening left here for the coast—a divorcee.

Cruelty was the cause of action. It served to win Mrs. Brandeis $100,000 alimony and custody of her three-months-old baby. There was no salacious testimony, no cross-examination of witness and no "third female." Thus was justice enacted.

"Divine has been cruel and neglectful to me," the young wife testified. "He has spent little time at home. He has spoken harshly and scoffed to me."

A maid corroborated her. That ended the testimony.

Brandeis, who is twenty-three, did not contest. The entire proceeding took only half an hour. Judge Wakeley signed the decree.

SEEK REMEDY FOR ODORS OF BRAINTREE REFINERY

The Public Health Council meets today at the State House to consider the complaints from residents of Braintree, Weymouth and Quincy against offensive odors from oils and gasses on the Quincy shore. They declare that the odors come from the plant of the Massachusetts Oil Refining Company at East Braintree. The council announced it would start action to be taken to eliminate the nuisance. Officials of the plant have offered a number of suggestions for relieving the condition.

SOCIETY HAPPENINGS OF GREATER BOSTON

Tennis and Yachting in High Favor at Newport

By BETTY ALDEN

The members of Newport's Summer colony are dividing their attention between tennis and yachting today, for this is the second day of the invitation tennis tournament which is staged at the Casino, and the race for the King's Cup, which marks the disbanding of the fleet of the New York Yacht Club, on its cruise, also takes place today.

"Queen Mab," owned by Nathaniel Ayer of Boston, which captured the Navy Challenge Cup for the run from Glen Cove to Morris Cove last week, made a splendid showing in the struggle for the Astor Cup, the trophy offered by Vincent Astor, captain of the N. Y. Yacht Club, who has kept up the custom which was started with the offering of the Goelet Cups in 1882.

Today the fleet races for the King's Cup, which is offered perpetually to the N. Y. Yacht Club by King George V, following a precedent of the late King Edward VII. It is interesting to note that in 1906 Robert Emmons, 2nd, of Boston, won this magnificent trophy with the sloop "Avenger." It is expected that a number of boats owned by Bostonians will make a good showing in today's race.

J. Brooks Peeno, Jr., of No. 295 Commonwealth avenue, is among the college players who will appear in the tennis tournament at Newport this week. The holding of tennis reminds me that summering Newporters will again have the opportunity of seeing Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen display her skill on the courts of the Casino. The very versatile young woman is due to sail for this country August 3, so that Newport will see that there is quite a bit of discussion rampant among the devotees of the Casino as to how to meet the remarkable French player.

Mr. and Mrs. James Savage Russell of Milton are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dudley Dillon of New York at the latter's Summer home in Williamstown, in the Berkshires.

Mr. and Mrs. Ryehard D. Skinner and children of New York, and Mr. and Mrs. Allston Dana and children of Newburg, N. Y., are visiting Mr. Richard H. Dana at his Summer home, Dana's Beach, Manchester.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Warren Sturgis of Groton and their family are planning to spend next Winter in Europe and have taken Mrs. Walcott Howe Johnson's house at No. 7 Commonwealth avenue. Mrs. Johnson and her daughter Rosamond recently sailed for Europe.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick J. Bradlee, Jr., of Brookline have had as their guests of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl A. de Gersdorff, Mrs. Stockbridge, are now at Manchester for several weeks.

Among the arrivals at the Balsams at Dixville Notch, in the White Mountains are Mr. and Mrs. Joel B. Goldthwait of Boston, accompanied by Miss Margaret Goldthwait, Miss Janet Goldthwait, Mary Holyoke and Frances Flint of Boston, and C. B. Cabot of Concord, N. H.

Mr. and Mrs. Landon Humphreys (Jane Fairfield) and their children of Morristown, N. J., are visiting the mother of Mrs. Humphrey, Mrs. James C. Barr, at Southampton, L. I. Mrs. Barr was formerly a resident of this city.

Miss Eleanor Brewer, the daughter of Mr. Edward W. Brewer of 320 Lamartine street, Jamaica Plain, is an active member of the younger set.

DESERTED, WEDS FIVE WOMEN 'TO GET EVEN'

Warner Accused of Fleeing With Savings of His Last "Bride"

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 2.—Revenge for what he considered cruelty of age in the notable achievement of Miss Florence Woods, daughter of ex-Mayor John H. Woods, of this city.

Miss Woods is perhaps the youngest of her sex in the profession. She was the first girl to obtain the degree at the University of Maryland and the youngest in that state to hold one. She returns there to begin number to be sworn in and at the next session will take the Massachusetts State Bar examinations.

She then expects to go into some law firm for practical experience before hanging out her own "shingle."

Miss Woods attended the Holyoke schools and upon graduating from the high school entered Boston University where she studied for two years. Owing to her health she left Boston University for the University of Maryland and there completed her course.

Miss Woods declares that she believes in woman suffrage but thinks that women should not lose their womanliness by their entrance into public life. She believes that there is a field in the professional and business worlds for women but she does not believe that women should neglect their interest in the household arts. She thinks that women can make a field of their own in the life of the world without sacrificing the field which they have so long confined themselves to. She enjoys law and she enjoys making home and she finds time in life to do both.

TURKEY GOBBLER BECOMES "MOTHER"

Kennett, Me., Aug. 2.—John Smith's turkey gobbler has become a "mother." He decided he wanted to "set." So found on his order was the obtaining that he was a female at the special. an owner-fetes no every conceivable means to break the freakish desire of the male bird.

And the gobbler "set." Now he sits his stood to roost every night and ride there in scratching for food when the whistle of "Turkey Union" announces meal time.

HUNT MOTIVE FOR DOUBLE KILLING MYSTERY

Whitman Police Seek Reason for Edmund McLean Slaying Woman and Self

Whitman, Aug. 2.—Mrs. Nellie Black, forty-six years old, was shot and killed as she was about to enter her room in the Hobart House here by Edmund McLean, forty-six years old, a lodger in the same hotel, who fled to his chamber after the murder and committed suicide by sending a bullet through his heart.

The motive which led to the double tragedy is a mystery. Mrs. Ida Dickey, who conducts the hotel, said the couple were friendly, but that Mrs. Black did not appear to be more than a casual acquaintance of McLean.

LIFELESS IN CHAIR.

Mrs. Black's body was found at the threshold of her room on the second floor of the hotel. The police were called in search for McLean began. Using a passkey the police obtained entrance to his room. He was found sitting in a chair lifeless, the revolver at his side and a bullet through his heart.

An examination of the revolver showed that three shots had been fired. Dr. F. J. Hanley, who was called, stated that Mrs. Black was killed by a bullet which entered her body in the left breast, three inches below the shoulder.

OVERLOOKED OTHER WOUND.

The police stated that probably a second bullet received by the woman was overlooked in the superficial examination conducted by the physician.

Mrs. Black was an expert stitcher and vamper and was employed for many years in the Commonwealth Shoe factory, McLean, who was single, has lived at the Hobart House for the past two years and was a shipper employed by the National Foundry Company in East Whitman.

He is survived by a sister, Mrs. Mae Wilder of Norwood, and a brother, George McLean, who resides in Gloucester.

TRUCK DRIVER INJURED IN MALDEN COLLISION

James R. Eliot of No. 106 Buttonwood street, Dorchester, sustained a fracture of a leg when the auto truck he was driving collided with a motorcycle operated by James McCourt of Dartmouth street, at Mountain avenue and Washington street, Malden. McCourt received a gash on the head and contusions and abrasions to the body. A passenger on the machine, Louis Ducois of Wentworth street, received minor injuries.

AUTO DEATHS IN JULY DROP TO 44 KILLED

Toll From Accidents 22 Less Than in June; 18 Children Are Victims

Deaths resulting from automobile accidents were greatly reduced during the month of July from the month of June and the month of July last year, forty-four deaths being reported last month to the office of Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin. Of those killed last month eighteen were children.

During the month of July last year fifty-two were killed and during the month of June this year sixty-six, the highest in the history of the department were recorded.

18 NEW INSPECTORS.

The campaign of Registrar Goodwin to drive reckless and careless drivers from the road will be continued and today Commissioner John N. Cole appointed fifteen new inspectors to enforce the automobile laws and regulations.

Eight of the new inspectors will be assigned to the motor cycle squad and the remaining seven will serve as inspectors of motor vehicle traffic. The former will receive salaries of $1,650 a year while the latter will receive $1,740 a year.

The members of the new motor cycle squad will serve under Chief of Patrolman Edward G. O'Hara of the Revere police department and this afternoon the squad received instructions in automobile laws and court procedure and will be given a daily course of instruction until they take up their duties on the roads.

HAVE POLICE POWERS

The squad will wear khaki uniforms and under a recent statute will have police powers to make arrests. The men appointed to the motor cycle squad are George A. Parks, No. 27 Lowell street, Malden; Milton H. Rugby, No. 320 South Beach street, Fall River; Albert Lees, No. 21 Talbot street, Fairhaven; William F. Heaton, No. 13 Cleveland street, New Bedford; Roy E. Chase, No. 73 Pond street, Newburyport; John H. McNeece, No. 18 Strathmore road, Brookline; Thomas P. Keane, No. 49 Ridge street, Fall River and Thomas J. Moran, No. 122 Buffington street, Fall River.

The new appointees of inspectors of motor vehicle traffic are William F. Randall, No. 57 Plain street, Taunton; Hugh M. Grieve, No. 14 Morris street, Everett; Roger C. Huddy, No. 828 Saratoga street, East Boston; Leo F. Haley, No. 103 Concord avenue, Cambridge; Charles A. Moritz, No. 11 Gay Head street, Jamaica Plain; Roy A. Lavoie, No. 53 Small street, Dorchester, and William R. Nagle, No. 84 Bay View avenue, Lynn.

U-Boat That Sunk Lusitania May Be a Restaurant

By International News Service.

Copenhagen, Aug. 2.—The former German submarine U-30, which sank the Lusitania, may be converted into a seaside restaurant.

She is lying on the west coast of Jutland, where she went ashore five years ago.

The Social Democraten says that proposals for converting the submarine into an eating house are under consideration and the sponsors believe it would be a big money-making project owing to the historical importance attached to the U-boat.

HUSBAND KILLS SELF; SHOOTS WIFE AND MAN

Michael Sacalawas, thirty-two years old, of No. 413 Brighton street, fired a bullet into his brain after he had shot his wife, Pauline, twenty-eight years old, and Demetro Kransuk, forty-eight years old, in a room at No. 105 Brighton street, West End. Sacalawas died almost instantly.

According to the police, Sacalawas went to the room and found his wife with Kransuk, and started shooting. He had a revolver containing five cartridges, and after emptying the chamber reloaded the weapon and shot himself once through the head. He died as the couple lay across the bed groaning. Kransuk's wife, whose name couldn't be learned, was not found by the police.

Kransuk is employed in a cold storage plant. Mrs. Sacalawas resides at No. 123 Brighton street. She had not lived with her husband since last Christmas.

ARRAIGNED ON CHARGE OF LARCENY FROM SAILOR

Central Court continued the cases against Samuel Russo and Aneilo Cappellino, charged with larceny of $140 from Sailor Pablo Enriquez, in August 11. The complainant alleges he took his money while in a Washington street North lodging house. Both defendants are eighteen years old. They claim to live on Prince street, North End.

CLAIMS MARITAL BLISS NESTLES IN CALORIES

Northampton Girl to Give Husband "Diet Treatment" in Near Future

Eureka!

The secret of matrimonial happiness has been discovered!

Simple, isn't it?

Yet that's really all there is to it, according to Miss Marion Douglas Campbell, hwo is a dietitian, and ought to know.

Furthermore Miss Campbell, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Penn Campbell of No. 75 Union street, Northampton, is about to be married and intends to follow her own advice.

When informed that the ordinary husband would refuse to eat a calory if told it would help him, Miss Campbell smiled pityingly.

"A paunch isn't an ornament to any home," she declared cutingly. "Neither is superfluous flesh, no matter how well distributed. And that can easily remedied if the wife would take heed of the calories she feeds friend hubby and insist that he eat according to a chart. This chart, with the caloric value of each gram, forty-eight years old, in a room at No. 105 Brighton street, West End, Sacalawas died almost instantly.

According to the police, Sacalawas went to the room and found his wife with Kransuk, and started shooting. He had a revolver containing five cartridges, and after emptying the chamber reloaded the weapon and shot himself once through the head. He died as the couple lay across the bed groaning. Kransuk's wife, whose name couldn't be learned, was not found by the police.

Kransuk is employed in a cold storage plant. Mrs. Sacalawas resides at No. 123 Brighton street. She had not lived with her husband since last Christmas.

THEATRICAL MANAGER TRIES TO KILL HIMSELF

New York, Aug. 2.—Joseph W. Spears, theatrical manager and former associate of George M. Cohan, attempted suicide at the Hotel Langwell by slashing his wrists with a razor. He was taken to Bellevue Hospital, where his condition is critical. Despondency over his wife's ill health is given as a possible reason for the attempt. Spears' wife, who is ill at the hotel, was not advised of her husband's act, but was looking out of the window and saw him being put into an ambulance.

BEAUTY SHOW AS WELL AS SWIMFEST

Boston American Water Carnival Will Bring Together Galaxy of Pretty Girls

Fill in Blanks, Girls, and Join in Big Swimming Race

Entry for Boston American Girls' Championship Swimming race!

Name.....

Age.....

Address.....

The big water carnival of the Boston American to be held in the Charles River Basin Saturday afternoon, August 27, will bring together the finest galaxy of pretty girls ever seen in this part of the country. It will be a beauty show the like of which will instill in the minds of spectators a knowledge of types of girlhood and womanhood.

There will be blondes, both Titian and the other kind, and brunettes of the sort that Michael Angelo, the painter, took keen delight in drawing, and when these girls and young women leap into the water from the float of the Metropolitan Park Commission, at the foot of Revere street, it will be a sight well worth witnessing.

Greater interest was never manifested in an event than is evidenced in this coming Boston American water carnival. It is the talk of the beaches, workshops and department stores, and everywhere a girl has a chance to get in a line or two of conversation she boasts of the opportunity such functions give to strengthen the muscles, enlarge the lung power and beautify the complexion of the fair sex.

EVERY BEACH HAS COMPETITORS.

Every beach in and about Boston has its quota of girls who are figuring in taking part in the one and one-half-mile or the 200-foot race in connection with the carnival. Many of these girls took part in previous races run by the Boston American over the course selected, from the raft of the Metropolitan Park Commission, along the sea wall of the Esplanade, up stream to a stake boat near the Harvard Bridge, where a turn will be made to the left of the boat, thence down stream to the starting point.

The girl who reaches the raft first will be awarded the New England amateur girl champion for 1921. She will also receive a handsome prize. Each of the next four winners will also receive an award. All who finish the course will be given a diploma that will be suitable for framing and can be placed in the sitting room or parlor for friends to look at and go away with the knowledge that Annie, Pearl, Margaret, Mary or Katherine, or whatever the name may be, took part in the big Boston American race and won a diploma for finishing. Be sure to win one of these diplomas, girls, for it will prove that you are endowed with "stick-to-it-ness," an asset many college and high school girls lack.

But before you can win first, second, third, fourth or fifth prize or receive a diploma it is absolutely necessary for you to enter your name as a contestant. All you have to do is fill out the blank elsewhere on this page and mail it to the Swimming Editor, Boston American, No. 80 Summer street, Boston, Mass. As the water is free and the Basin has been fitted out as a resort for the people, the Boston American does not ask any contestant to pay a fee. Everything is as absolutely free as the air we breathe.

The list of entrants will be published shortly. Get in this big swim, girls. Be sure to write your own name on the blank. It is a misdemeanor for a person to write another's name.

MILK PRODUCERS GET INCREASE; TO ASK MORE

Stratford, Aug. 2.—Local milk men shipping milk to Boston and Providence are receiving 18 cents more per quart on the month of August, and say they will insist on another advance in September. The hay crop, which is very light, has been greatly damaged by the last weekly weather, hundreds of tons being partially destroyed.

WATERTOWN GIRL SCOUT IS DROWNED; CAMPING

Edna Zwicker, sixteen years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Caleb Zwicker, No. 24 Royal street, Watertown, was drowned in a pond on the Sweet estate, between Dover and Medfield, she was visiting at a camp of Girl Scouts from the Phillips Congregational Church of Watertown.

TIRE BLOWOUT LANDS LYNN MAN IN JAIL

Harris Eisaman of No. 71 Shepard street, Lynn, is under arrest as the result of a tire blowout.

The blowout occurred as Eisaman was driving his truck through Wyoma square, Lynn, bound for Peabody. While he was making repairs, someone peeped into the truck and telephoned the police. They came, saw, and arrested Eisaman.

He was charged with having 40 gallons of liquor in his possession with the intention of offering it for sale, and with transporting liquor.

The police confiscated the truck.

SAIL FOR HUB AFTER BRAVING SEA PERILS

Yarmouth, N. S., Aug. 2.—Three Boston and one Gloucester fishermen who missed their vessel, the Morning Star, of Boston, in a dense fog, and arrived here yesterday after drifting without food or water for four days, left today for Boston. They are William J. White, of East Boston; Peter Anlos of Gloucester, and John Wolf and James Larkin, of Boston.

The United States Consul here has also sent back to Boston, Capt. Gus Dobson and the crew of the Boston fishing schooner Genestan, rammed and sunk on Browns' Bank last Thursday.

Capt. Dobson said his craft was sent to the bottom in a collision with the Lunenburg schooner Mary G. Duff, bound for Halifax, which struck them in a fog.

ENCKE'S COMET COMING THIS WAY

That Encke's comet is approaching the earth 6a news received at the Harvard astronomical observatory in a cablegram from Professor C. D. Perrine, director of the National observatory at Cordoba, Argentina. Encke's comet was first discovered by Encke in 1819 and is a short periodic comet, requiring three and one half years to complete its orbit. It is not discernable to the naked eye, but can be easily picked up with the telescope.

ANTI-TAMMANY MEN PICK CURRAN LEADER

New York, Aug. 2.—Republican city leaders in a conference picked Henry H. Curran, president of the Borough of Manhattan, to be the Republican candidate for mayor against Mayor Hylan. State Senator Charles C. Lockwood was picked to make the race for city comptroller.

The names of these candidates are to be submitted today to the general anti-Tammany conference at the Hotel Commodore. This action by the Republican leaders is expected to end the deadlock which has been impairing the work of selecting candidates to oppose the Tammany ticket.

BRITAIN ABANDONS FAR EAST CONFERENCE

London, Aug. 2.—Great Britain has definitely abandoned the project for a preliminary international conference to discuss Far Eastern issues, it was learned from a reliable source this afternoon.

The British government has decided not to make any further overtures on the subject as a result of the unfavorable attitude of Washington.

FIRST CORPS DISCHARGE QUOTA NOW COMPLETE

No more enlisted men will be discharged from the army as the 30 per cent. of allowed discharges during July is now complete. There are no orders for further discharges from Washington according to Major William a. Beach, assistant adjutant of the First Corps Area. There are 524 applications on hand for discharges in the First Corps area but these will not be acted upon until further orders from Washington are received.

VIEWS OF PRESIDENT HARDING ON HISTORIC VISIT TO PLYMOUTH

PRESIDENT PREDICTING "NEW ERA"

The President reading the speech at Plymouth in which he declared America stands with "new hope" at the door of a new era which promises to bring the nation to the state "which God must have ment for those created in His own image."

THE PRESIDENT RIDES IN PARADE

The President on the deck of the Mayflower listening to the Presidential salute fired after the yacht dropped anchor in Plymouth harbor. The bottom view shows the President and Mrs. Harding leaving the wharf on their way to take part in the parade which featured the Tercentenary fete.

The President in characteristic pose, top, and, in the machine with Mrs. Harding, receiving the plaudits of crowds who lined the route of the big parade in which he participated.

PRESENTING MEDAL

The President is here shown presenting medal to a New Bedford schoolboy for Americanization work. The presentation took place just after the President himself had been given a gold medal by the reception committee on his arrival at the wharf in Plymouth.

HARDING CALLS FOR A UNITED AMERICA

One Spirit, One Purpose, Says President at Portland

Portland, Me., Aug. 2.—"I'd like to register in American those industrial activities which made us famous," declared President Harding, speaking at the City Hall here today shortly after his arrival from Plymouth. He had just expressed himself in favor of protection for the potato-growing industry.

"We are a government by law, and I am glad to come to bespeak the interests in your State. I believe that America draws its strength from the many States and not from the sections," said the President.

"I want an America of good people, I want one America with one spirit, one pride and one purpose and only one flag, the American flag," he continued.

"Though there are discouragements and though we are handling conditions that the world never appraised, our confidence in America makes us know that we are coming to a better order. It will not be long until our America opens the door to a new established order."

The President paid tribute to Senators Hale and Fernald, and also to New England.

"I know something of New England cordiality and I like to say that I enjoy New England," he said.

The President and Mrs. Harding were on their way to the summer home of Senator Weeks at Lancaster, N. H.

COOLIDGE VISITS COX AT STATE HOUSE

Vice-President Apparently Unchanged by Official Life at Capital

For the first time since he was elected Vice-President of the United States Calvin Coolidge today returned to the scenes of his Massachusetts triumphs when he called on Governor Cox at the State House.

The visit was purely a formal one, it was stated, and the Vice-President merely called to pay his respects to the Governor, His son, Calvin Jr., accompanied him, as did the special State officer assigned to him as a bodyguard while he is in the Commonwealth.

Official life at Washington apparently has not brought any change in the Vice-President. He looked the same as of old and was smoking one of the familiar long thin cigars.

In a brief conversation with newspapermen Mr. Coolidge stated that the government has a great organization in Washington now and is going along well. He said that there is talk of an adjournment of Congress and intimated that the length of his stay in Massachusetts will depend on whether or not Congress adjourns.

The Vice-President expects to stay at Swampscott for two or three days.

Speaking of events at Plymouth he said that the pageant was wonderful and that President Harding made a wonderful speech. "As he always does."

FINAL TRIBUTE PAID HAVERHILL PHYSICIAN

Haverhill, Aug. 2.—Thousands honored the memory of Dr. John F. Cronin, medical examiner, chairman of the board of health and one of Haverhill's prominent physicians at the funeral services held at St. James Church.

Rev. Father J. J. Graham was celebrant, Rev. Ambrose Hennessey, deacon and Rev. Gerard Dolan subdeacon. The honorary bearers were Judge John J. Wall and John J. Ryan, Moses H. Dow, Dr. A. E. Durant, Dr. L. J. Clarke and Kean George O. Lennon of the board of Health.

Burial was in Saint James cemetery.

CUT INTERNATIONAL TRAINMEN'S PAY

Buffalo, Aug. 2.—A reduction of five cents an hour in the wages of trainmen and other employes of the International Railway Company will become effective, August 15, according to a statement issued by the company.

This is on the basis maximum wage of trainmen, which is sixty cents an hour, with similar adjustments in the hourly rates paid other employes.

MURDER CHARGE MADE AFTER FATAL QUARREL

Springfield, Aug. 2.—Frank Lesnewski, twenty-eight years old, of Sharon street, was held for the murder of Eliott Bobbowski, forty-nine years old, of No. 17 Essex street, after arraignment in police court. He was remanded to jail without bail to await hearing the 11th. Bobbowski was stabbed to death Sunday in a row over money.

LEAGUE TREATED 1,067 ANIMALS IN 3 DAYS

The Animal Rescue League during the three days of the recent heat wave made 181 calls and received 1,067 animals, of which number 998 were cats and 11 dogs, according to Mrs. Huntington Smith.

GETS 6 MONTHS FOR 2-YEAR-OLD THEFT

Joseph Riddler, formerly employed by Abraham Rosenfield, a South End auto dealer, was sentenced to six months in the House of Correction by Judge Burke Tuesday on the theft of two auto tires. Rosenfield testified he caught Riddler tossing two auto tires to two men upper window to another man in the yard below, in September, 1919. When asked by the court why he had failed to prosecute the plaintiff claimed that he was unable to locate Riddler. Riddler admitted that he was then doing time in the House of Correction.

STATE LEGION HEAD WILL NOT RUN AGAIN

Clinton, Aug. 2.—The field is free to all comers who aspire to be the head of the Massachusetts department of the American Legion so far as James T. Dunne of this town, present commander, is concerned. He stated that he would not be a candidate for re-election at the Pittsfield convention next month. He said that the financial aspect has a bearing upon the matter in that no man of average means can afford to hold the office and the demands upon this physical nature are too great.

CUCUMBER LEADS TO DOWNFALL OF MOTORIST

Eating a cucumber proved the undoing of Edward R. Williams, manager for the Holland System of Boston, for he was fined $75 by Judge Ralph W. Reeves in Lynn district court yesterday for operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor and $5 for violating a city ordinance. Williams, who lives at No. 162 Fuller street, Brookline, was found in his automobile in Reede street, Lynn, eating a cucumber. This aroused the suspicion of the police and on investigating they allege they found a broken bottle on the sidewalk by the automobile.

EXTEND IRISH TRUCE IF PEACE PARLEYS FAIL

Lloyd George and De Valera Agree to a Continuation

By International News Service.

London, Aug. 2.—Premier Lloyd George and Eamon de Valera have agreed that if the Irish peace negotiations fail each side will give reasonable length of time before terminating the Irish armistice, Austen Chamberlain, the government spokesman, announced in the House of Commons this afternoon.

"Premier Lloyd George hopes to make a statement upon Ireland before the present session of Parliament adjourns," Mr. Chamberlain said.

"The premier is not prepared to make a statement on Ireland to a secret session of the House of Commons as such has been suggested."

PITTSFIELD BURIES 4 HEROES, KILLED IN WAR

Pittsfield, Aug. 2.—Pittsfield honored four soldiers, members of Company F, 104th Regiment, who were killed in France in July, 1918. Their joint funerals were held at St. Joseph's Church. They were George Joseph Vella, Michael Patrick Witherspoon, John J. O'Connell and Charles Sachetti. The church was crowded. The solemn requiem high mass was celebrated by the Rev. Bernard S. Conaty, assisted by the Rev. Michael J. Leonard and the Rev. Anthony Toniolli. The procession to St. Joseph's Cemetery, where all four interments took place, was headed by the American Legion Band with representatives of all patriotic bodies following. By proclamation of Mayor M. W. Flynn stores were closed during the hour of the funeral. Flags throughout the city were at half-mast.

PITTSFIELD GIRL TO WED ATTORNEY WARNER

Pittsfield, August 2.—Mrs. Karl K. Badder of No. 37 Harding street has announced the engagement of her sister, Miss Florence Teet, to Attorney Milton B. Warner. The wedding will take place this month. Miss Teet is a stenographer in the office of Frederic C. Peach. Attorney Warner is a graduate of Harvard Law School and was admitted to the Berkshire bar in 1915. He is a cousin of Former Speaker of the House Joseph E. Warner, and is now senior member of the law firm of Warner & Barker.

BANDITS ROB BANK MESSENGER OF $3,910

Chicago, Aug. 2.—Five robbers held up a messenger for the Ogden Avenue State Bank on a street corner here and robbed him of $3,910 in cash. The money belonged to the Borden Farm Products Company, which was the victim of a hold up last week.

ELEVEN HURT IN CAMBRIDGE CAR CRASH

Belmont-Bound One-Man Trolley and Truck Collide on Brattle Street

Ten passengers were cut and bruised and the motorman suffered severe injuries to his face when a one-man trolley car, bound for Belmont, and a big motor truck collided head on at Brattle and Mt. Auburn streets, Cambridge.

Construction work on Mount Auburn street forced the auto truck to cross the tracks from the right hand side of the road to the left as the trolley car approached. Chauffeur Charles Bedard, of No. 6 Vandine street, Cambridge, who was not injured, declares the motorman had sufficient time to stop.

Motorman Fred Chadwick, of No. 88 Holworthy street, who was removed to the hospital for treatment, blames the chauffeur for not stopping, and was praised by the passengers for remaining at his post.

The injured passengers were:

Sidney Curtis, No. 60 Goden street, Belmont; Mrs. Nellie Beal, No. 24 Cottage street, Belmont; Robert G. Inman, No. 9 Cheney terrace, Belmont; Mrs. G. W. Rogers, No. 24 Cottage street, Belmont; Miss Olga Ohlund, No. 29 Clyde road, Watertown; Mrs. Hannah Almgren, No. 23 Marion road, Belmont; Alexander Johnson, No. 9 Concord avenue, Belmont; Miss Helen C. McKeon, No. 221 Brighton street, Belmont; William L. Munsey, No. 170 Concord avenue, Belmont, and N. Martinolich, No. 61 Grove street, Belmont.

BOYS HAVE SNOWBALL FIGHT AFTER SNOWSTORM

North Adams, Aug. 2.—Snowballs in August were the missiles used in a novel game between boys residing in the nearby town of Pownal, Vt.

The snow balls were made from hail which fell to a depth of two inches during a freak storm and remained on the ground all afternoon. Auto drivers had a hard time driving through the slippery mass while the cold air made many of them shiver.

MAN'S JAW BROKEN IN CRASH WITH CAR

Michael Mulcahy, 37 years old, of No. 748 Huntington avenue, while driving his automobile in front of No. 1309 Washington street, was jammed against an elevated railway support by an electric car. He was taken to the City Hospital suffering from a fracture of the jaw.

HERO OF CIVIL WAR DIES IN RHODE ISLAND

Lincoln, R. I., Aug. 2.—Charles E. Fisher, seventy-eight, dead here, saw much military service during the Civil War. He served in Company D, 32d Massachusetts Infantry, and was in thirty-one engagements. Once by prompt action, he saved his company colors.

GUN IN HANDBAG NOT CONCEALED, RULING

A revolver in your handbag is not a concealed weapon, Judge Willis W. Stover of Malden district court ruled in disposing of the case of William A. Harquist of No. 5 Arcadia street, Cambridge. Harquist was arrested while firing at a target in the Middlesex Reservation Sunday. Judge Stover fined him $2 for firing the revolver in the parkway on Sunday, but refused to entertain the concealed weapon charge.

$2,000,000 FOR SERUM RIGHTS IN AMERICA

Swiss Bacteriologist to Accept Offer for Tuberculosis Treatment

By Universal Service.

London, Aug. 2.—An offer of $2,000,000 for the right to dispense in the United States the famous Spahlinger serum for tuberculosis, has been made by an American institution, it is learned by Universal Service.

Dr. Spahlinger, the brilliant young Swiss bacteriologist, who was in London last week to attend the International Tuberculosis Conference, told friends about the offer. It is understood that the offer was made by the Rockefeller Institute, although Dr. Spahlinger did not disclose the source of the offer. He is going to accept the offer.

The offer follows the adoption of the Spahlinger serum by the governments of Portugal, Brazil, Spain and Belgium, each of whom paid Spahlinger such a large sum that he is already a wealthy man aside from the American offer.

SOUTH END "BULLY" ATTACKS SMALL BOYS

Police are searching the South End district for a mysterious "big bully" who has been giving smaller boys severe beatings. Their quest follows the finding of Charles Tartlebaum, twelve years old, son of Mrs. Lilly Tartlebaum of No. 41 Pay street, unconscious near his home. Doctors at the City Hospital, to which he was taken, expressed their belief he had been beaten by a larger boy.

DRIVEN TO BREWING BY HARD TIMES, HIS PLEA

Attleboro, Aug. 2.—Nicola Colletti admitted in court that he manufactured and sold beer to support his family. Because of his destitution he was not fined, but was warned to give up brewing.

Where Is Harding on League of Nations Now? Asks Holt

New York, Aug. 2.—In an open letter to the thirty-one prominent Americans who two weeks before the presidential election urged the election of Harding as a friend of the League of Nations, Hamilton Holt, editor of "The Independent," reminds them of what they said about Harding and his attitude toward the League, and asks whether they still think the same. Among the thirty-one individuals to whom Mr. Holt addressed himself are Secretary of State Hughes, Secretary of Commerce Hoover, Jacob Gould Schurman, Ambassador to Japan; Elihu Root and Oscar Straus.

"It is now over a year since Harding was nominated for the presidency," wrote Mr. Holt. "It is five months since he assumed office. The United States is still outside the existing League of Nations."

IRISH SOCIETIES HOLD BIG OUTING AUGUST 20

Miss Mary MacSwiney, sister of the martyred Lord Mayor MacSwiney of Cork, Ireland, will be the principal speaker at the field day of the Amalgamated Irish societies of Massachusetts in Russell Field, North Cambridge, Saturday afternoon, August 20.

Harry Boland, member of the Irish mission and secretary to President Eamon De Valera of the Irish Republic, will also speak. Joseph McGarrity of Philadelphia will speak on the progress of the Irish Republic.

North Andover, Aug. 2.—Arthur Radcliffe of No. 119 Marlborough street, this town, died at the Lawrence General Hospital following injuries he received when he was run over by a milk wagon owned by Charles D. Glennie. Radcliffe, who was thirteen years old, was riding with William Hanford, the driver, when he was thrown beneath the wheels.

FIRST EXPERTS FOR DISARMING TALK NAMED

Williams and Miles Chosen for U. S. Delegation at Coming Conference

Washington, Aug. 2.—E. T. Williams of Berkeley, California, and Basil Miles of this city have been named as the first experts to be attached to the American delegation to the Washington conference on limitation of armament and far eastern affairs.

This fact indicates that the conference will be held and that it will be nowhere else than this city. Officials in charge of the undertaking also have no fear that there will be any fatal final obstruction to the hope that the conference will arrive at results which will be accepted as principles of the far eastern settlement all over the world.

Mr. Williams is intimately familiar with Chinese, Russian and Japanese treaties and policies and acts. He held the post of consul at several places in China and served for a time as United States charge d'affaires at Peking. His value in the present conference is that from 1914 to 1918 he was at the head of the Division of Far Eastern Affairs at the State Department, and Eastern affairs to the American delegation in several agreement to which the United States delegation subscribed at Paris. He is in other words, perfectly familiar with the skeletons in the American closet at Versailles.

Mr. Miles was secretary of the special Root mission to Russia in 1917. He was also special assistant to the American Ambassador at Petrograd early in 1917, with the rank of Minister Plenipotentiary. On his return here after the declaration of war he was appointed chief of the division of Russian affairs in the Department of State.

LIQUOR SEIZED IN SOUTH END RAID

Sergeant MacDonald and a squad of police from station five raided the home of Isaac Topkin, Shawmut avenue, South End, where a quantity of alleged liquor was seized.

JAP COLLEGE HAS MONKEY GLAND CURRICULUM

Tokio, Aug. 2.—Following the lead of American, French and Austrian scientists and doctors, in grafting a portion of an animal gland into the interstitial gland of the human body to produce renewed vitality, the Imperial University in Fukuoka, Japan, will soon start experiments of that nature here. The work by the school will be a departure from precedent, however, as it will be the first institution in the world to create a department for such work.

Dr. Yasusaburo Sakaki, who will be in charge of the work, expects to submit both men and women in dotage to the operation, using both monkey and goat glands in making the substitution.

'VAUDEVILLE NUT' HAS NEW ACT AT KEITH'S

Bert Fitzgibbon Abandons Straw Hats for Xylophone; Aileen Stanley Charms

By FRED J. McISAAC.

Many a fine vaudeville headliner has sunk without a trace because he couldn't change his act, but that cannot be said of Bert Fitzgibbon. No longer does he tear a straw hats to pieces. He has a new act. Probably the fact that straws now cost seven dollars instead of one-fifty aided the celebrated "vaudeville nut" to get a lot of new stuff. But he has got it, and you laugh just as severely when he manhandles the xylophone as when he used to chew up straw bonnets.

Bert carries his brother Leo with him. Leo is a pianist, and a real xylophone player. He seemed troubled with stiffness, he explained for a relative of Bert Fitzgibbon.

A RARE CHARMER.

And now we come to Aileen Stanley, billed as the phonograph girl. Here is a rare charmer, dressed with beauty, grace, art and appeal, whatever exactly that may be. Photographs of Miss Stanley should be sold with all her records. I never happen to have heard one, but her act is surely a most advertisement for them.

Whom have we here now but the Meistersingers, that double sextet of old-fashioned singers who can read music and fill notes exactly, not approximately. Several of the old boys have disappeared from the gang, but the newcomers sing so well you forget the missing ones.

WELL DESERVED LAUGHS.

Edwin George, an intentionally bad juggler, with a smart line of patter, is a great many well deserved laughs. I suspect he must be a good juggler to be as bad as he pretends. Horace Goldin, a Svengali hypnotist-illusionist, has an illusion act, but who'll be appears in now a lady and two pieces. A pretty thought, is it not? He actually doesn't do it, which is one time he is at fault.

Let us draw a veil over Le Haven and Nice, whose burlesque dancing act is not quite half enough to be good. How did they escape from the "Everyday" bill at the Opera House? Gold and Edwards, who dance on roller skates, would have a good act if they were not Brenda again over their regular faces.

Other Theatres

MODERN AND BEACON THEATRES—A delicious satire on "gentle readers" people who neglect to pay their bills in "sham," which was shown at the Modern about the "theatre crowded" is a comedy of decided appeal. Perhaps the most striking feature of the offering is the smooth and even quality of the acting. From the charming star, Ethel Clayton, down to the most inconspicuous "extra" the cast is perfectly chosen.

BOSTON ARENA—Boston dancers have found, this summer weather more endurable at the Arena than anywhere else, and for the first time in the history of dancing in this city during the summer, large crowds are attending nite dances instead of going to the beach resorts. The special features at the Arena are one of the big attractions. Thursday night, Jack Hoxie, the movie star, will enter the building on horseback and Jasson from among the dancers the girl he thinks most suitable for a place in his company.

MOSELEY'S ON THE CHARLES—With the torrid Summer evening's growing more and more hostile as the season goes on, the cool pavilion of Moseley's on the Charles is drawing its thousands of lovers who no out upon the porch overlooking the river, sip soft drinks and watch the canoes glide by. Sheridan's orchestra of Maynard, one of the finest jazz bands in the state, supplies the music.

REVUE GIRLS WHO ARE GOING TO CUB

ZOE NORTH

BOSTON THEATRE—Bessie Love, the delightful, petite charmer of the screen, heads the program at the Boston Theatre this week in "Penny of Top Hill Trail," a screen version of the popular novel of the same name. In this unusually gripping play she portrays the role of a young film star.

BOWDOIN SQUARE THEATRE—The Cosmopolitan production, "Proxies," with Frank Keefe and Norma Kerry, proved to be a Paramount offering of rare worth and replete with exciting situations. Larry Semon pleased in "The Fair Guy" and Helen Holmes in "The Tiger Band," and five vaudeville acts delighted in full measure.

PARK THEATRE—The story of "The Silver Car," the feature at the Park Theatre this week, is one of mystery, suspense and thrills. A charming love interest is interwoven in the action and holds the attention of the spectator. There is several spectacular scenes and much of the unusual in the action.

LOEW'S ORPHEUM THEATRE—Don Healy and Henry Berman top a capacity bill at Loew's Orpheum Theatre this initial half of this week in a variety of lively producing antics. M. Golden's "Dancers Supreme," with Hamilton, Calvert and Berman, in their surprise which they are repeating the success which they have scored throughout the country.

REVERE BEACH—The thrilling stunts performed by Capt. Alfred C. Hodge and his Aerial Nomads have attracted large throngs to Revere Beach to witness the season's greatest treat.

Plays That Remain

TREMONT THEATRE—Last evening began the final month of the engagement of George M. Cohan's Comedians in the musical comedy, "The O'Brien Girl," at the Tremont Theatre, from where, on September 5, it will move on to Chicago.

GLOBE THEATRE—The popularity of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," now in the fourteenth week of its engagement in Boston, continues to pack the Globe Theatre, despite the prevailing hot weather.

BOY, BED AND TIGHTS SCORCHED BY FLAMES

In searching for his tights so that he might escape the heat by going in swimming, Tony Masello, six years old, of No. 12 Steele street, North End, started a fire all of his own, but his tights, a perfectly good bed and some of his hair. Tony was searching under the bed for his tights with a lighted match when he ignited a corner of the bedspread as he was crawling out. The damage, which was confined to the room, amounted to $60.

MAYOR HYLAN TO RUN IN NEW YORK AGAIN

New York, Aug. 2—A conference of Tammany leaders made it certain that Mayor John F. Hylan is to head the Democratic city ticket. The selection of the Mayor now takes for granted the balance of the ticket as designed to be easily forecasted.

SISTER OF MERCY BURIED FROM CONVENT CHAPEL

Manchester, N. H., Aug. 2—The funeral of Sister Mary Antonia Casey of the Order of Mercy, took place from the Chapel of the Convent of Mercy. The Rev. Martin Casey, brother of the deceased, celebrated a solemn high mass of requiem, assisted by the Rev. John Casey, also a brother of the deceased.

DEADLOCK OVER PARTITION OF SILESIA

French Would Give Poland Most of Towns and Coal Mines—British Object

Paris, Aug. 2—The allied experts were reported today to be deadlocked over the partition of Upper Silesia and the awards to be made to Poland and Germany in accordance with last Winter's plebiscite.

The French experts presented a provisional divisional line to the council of experts which would grant Poland practically the whole of Upper Silesia, including all the large towns and coal mines. The British objected, saying that they were determined that Poland should not receive any Upper Silesian territory except Rybnik and Pless.

The German cabinet, headed by Premier Wirth, has agreed to resign if necessary, to continue the Entente allies and compel an Upper Silesian decision favorable to Germany, the Neue Berliner Zeitung of Berlin stated today.

PARAGON PARK TROUPE WILL PLAY IN CUBA

Accept Offer to Appear in Havana and Panama After Labor Day

The flock of pretty girls who compose the revue at Paragon Park were called together yesterday and asked if they would be willing to go to Havana and Panama after Labor Day, as Mr. Cressen who manages the company had received a tempting offer from the agents of big Cuban and South American amusement enterprises. Acceptance was unanimous.

It seems that a party of Cuban officials attended a dinner at Paragon Park, several weeks ago, and were particularly impressed with the beauty and ingenuousness of the girls in the revue as well as the "pep" they put into their performance. The offer came as a result of letters sent to Cuba.

Among the girls who have agreed to go is Hazel Sears, who is known as the Knickerbocker girl, because she was the first girl to wear the new knickers on the streets of Boston. Every member of the company has had experience in first class American musical comedies and that the company will stick together instead of disbanding and going out in Broadway shows during the coming season is a testimonial to the good feeling in the troupe.

"It is twice as hard to make folks who are drinking ginger ale get enthusiastic about your work," said Zoe North, in discussing the trip. "Nobody knows how we struggle to put our stuff over against the soft drink damper. But a girl who can deliver in an ice cream emporium is sure to be a riot where the champagne flows. That's why our girls have no fears of the show being a great success in Cuba and South America."

TWO SOCIETY WOMEN DIE IN AUTO CRASH

New Brunswick, N. J., Aug. 2—Two prominent Louisville, Ky., society women were killed here today when a limousine in which they were touring turned turtle on the Lincoln highway between Franklin Park and Ten Mile Run.

The car, traveling at a high rate of speed, skidded on a curve. The party was returning from a tour of the New England States.

GIRL BICYCLIST KLLLED BY TRUCK

Springfield, Aug. 2—Helen McCarthy, thirteen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. McCarthy, No. 14 Hunt terrace, was run over by a truck of the city park department while riding her bicycle on Walnut street today. She was dead when picked up. No arrests were made.

News of Motion Picture World

By FRIEDA DAVIS

RAIN or shine, Summer or Winter, hot or cold weather, the movies are not neglected. Even during vacation days people find that the week is not complete without a few visits to the picture houses. It is while watching the films at a small theatre of a seacoast town that one realizes the difference between the city audiences and the "small-town audiences."

Whereas those who see pictures constantly, and with all the aids to appreciation—an attractively arranged setting, a well-played orchestra or organ accompaniment and well balanced program—greet each and every bit of acting and each and every fall of the comedian without a change of expression, the fans who make up the audiences in smaller towns and villages applaud what they like and hiss what they don't like.

Indeed it's not uncommon to hear the children hiss the villain and applaud the rescuing hero or heroine, while shrieks of joy greet Chaplin, Harold Lloyd or Larry Semon.

Applause is also dropped out of the scheme of things in our larger theatres. It is considered "small-town" to show appreciation, so blatantly. But, on the other hand, it is a sure sign to the manager. While the actors themselves cannot hear and cannot know how their fans feel about their work, still the manager of the theatre can. He will know what his patrons like—and will give it to them. When any of these films are booked ahead, then he, too, knows how his things "go over." "Giving the public what it wants" is the result of knowing what it wants.

ANOTHER ALL-STAR SPECIAL.

OUR in Hollywood they are starting work on another all-star feature with Gloria Swanson, Wallace Reid, and Elliott Dexter in the featured roles. The story is by Lorna Moon and will be called "Don't Tell Everything." Since the success that "The Affairs of Anatol," with its twelve stars taking part, Lasky can't make enough of these pictures. There is little question that it will prove a popular plan.

CAMERA CLICKS.

MAE COLLINS, having finished work opposite Frank Mayo in his next picture for Universal, "The Shark Master," has been signed to appear with Garrett Hughes in "Little Eva Ascends," a magazine story by Thomas Boyle.

LEW CODY, who has spent his between-pictures time in making personal appearances throughout the Middle West, is ready to start work on his next film. The only specification he makes regarding the work is that he won't be asked to play another "he-vamp" role.

FANNIE WARD HEARD FROM.

FANNIE WARD, who left the movie field of this country being several years ago and went abroad to live, is considering, according to report, a stage appearance in London for the coming season in a play presented by an American producer.

FANNIE WARD

Another rumor is that Miss Ward is planning to follow in the steps of Evelyn Nesbit and will open a smart shop in London. While Miss Nesbit specializes in food, Miss Ward will specialize in frocks and costumes. All of which is rumor and given for what it's worth.

Good Bill at Modern and Beacon

The pictures at the Modern and Beacon Theatres this week deal largely with the ways and means of dodging bill collectors.

Ethel Clayton's feature, "Sham," leads with an excellent story adapted by Douglas Doty from a play by Elmer Harris, who has been providing Bebe Daniels and Wanda Hawley with such clever comedies.

"Sham" is what the cattleman from Montana calls New York, and the New Yorkers, "Sham" is what Ethel Clayton as Katherine Van Riper mistakes for life. She spends her time "charging it" from shop to shop, while her poor relative and the cook spend theirs keeping collectors from the door.

Eventually she meets the man from Montana. He falls in love with her and she feels that she is slipping—Katherine Van Riper, who never has paid any attention to a man beyond ascertaining his bank account and his limits of being stalled. Meanwhile Walter Miers—he must be working night and day in Hollywood for seldom does a week pass without seeing him—as Monty Buck, offers his fortune and Katherine is on the point of taking it. At the last minute her uncle comes in and pays her bills and Katherine throws over Monty and heads for Montana.

Though Ethel Clayton is starred, she is supported by a number of players whose names might well be in electric lights. Theodore Roberts, Sylvia Ashton, Walter Hiers and Clyde Fillmore. By no means least in the cast is the actress who plays the part of the Irish cook. Her name was flashed on quickly and I don't remember it, but as a comedienne she is priceless.

Elmer Harris is a "find" in the scenario field, for he can plainly not bring about a series of unusual and amusing situations and his subtitles are among the greatest factors of his pictures. The direction of the film does stand out as necessary, which is necessary, while Miss Clayton's work is little more than satisfactory. Theodore Roberts and the Irish cook, however, make the picture quite worth while.

The second picture on the bill, "Life's Darn Funny," starring Viola Dana, is a board for Carter Hughes, but don't bring Miss Dana any laurels. Taken from a Saturday Evening Post story, "Cake-takers Within," by Christine Jope Slade, it is a story of a young girl and an aspiring artist, who try to help each other.

Through the enthusiasm of Zoe Robert Clary Warrens gives up his painting and becomes a wonderful dough-dauber. They set up their office in a borrowed studio and create gowns for the smart women of New York. When creditors try to force matters, Zoe pleasantly promises that when the women pay, then she and Warwick will pay. When the creditors walk off with all the studio furniture, none of which belongs to Zoe or Clay, their luck turns. Zoe's violin playing wins recognition as well as Clay's painting, and they both look forward to a rosy future.

The picture is not up to the story as it was in regarding Zoe and the role of Zoe is not fitted for Viola Dana. It is more as a flendish youngster that she shines. She has a temperamental and exciting wardrobe, though, however, is splendid as the artist's model. Frederick Vroom as the father is a decided contrast to the stage director's villainous portrayals. The titles, or which there are far too many, detract from the theme in nearly every instance.

FAMILY RAIDED OFTEN BY BLACK AND TANS

Connolly Tells Story of Bravery of Patriotic McDonnell Girls

TORTURED IRELAND

By JAMES S. CONNOLLY

Famous New England Author and Journalist.

A family by the name of McDonnell live just outside Nenagh, and I am going to say a word of the McDonnells. They are worth it.

The McDonnells had a beautiful home on a hill. From the McDonnell hill was a wonderful view; hardly its equal in all Ireland—anywhere. To one side lay the picturesque Slieve Bloom mountain and to the other side flowed the beautiful Shannon River, the river here curving wide between low hills and the water the bluest of any river that I ever beheld.

A more than a hundred-yard wide driveway runs up to the McDonnell mansion from the road, and there are eighty acres of the finest land in Tipperary rolling down from the McDonnell home.

The McDonnells had a houseful of children and from the youngest up they were known to be Republican sympathizers. The grown up girls, all college or convent trained, were as strongly Republican as the boys. Raiding the McDonnells was a sort of habit with the local Black and Tans and army men, as it was raiding the Dalys in Limerick, etc.

A thousand other comfortable Irish families have had the same experience. They get so they take it as part of the day's or night's work.

On this Sunday morning the mixed party—i.e., Black and Tans and army men—drove up to the McDonnell home. The oldest daughter saw them coming and one of the boys happening to be at home at the time, she told him to get up to a top room and hide away till they had gone, thinking that it was the usual procedure of turning the house up side down to discover incriminating papers and so on.

"FRAMED" WITH CARTRIDGES.

But this was no here raid. The officer in charge read a paper to the effect that whereas and inasmuch and therefore and His Majesty and so on, they had come to burn the house and everything else burnable on the McDonnell estate. The family were to be allowed to take away legal papers and nothing else.

They set fire to the mansion first, pouring the usual petrol on to make it go quickly; then began on the buildings, of which there were about a dozen on the place. They spared only a little dairy, and they spared that only until they had done eating and drinking in it, the food and drink being the McDonnell's and taken without the McDonnell's consent.

As the flames and the smoke from the petrol-soaked mansion and furniture in it rolled upward the young brother, who had hid away on the top floor, found himself in a bad fix. He stood it as long as he could and then jumped out of the top window to the roof of the porch and from there to the ground. The crown forces spotted him, leaped on him and pinioned him.

A sergeant-major went through the form of searching him; he pretended to find a clip of cartridges in the boy's pocket. The boy looked at the clip and laughed at the sergeant-major, saying: "And am I so simple that I would not throw them away all the time I was alone on top, if I had them on me?"

You must not jeer at the crown forces. They took the boy down the hill, stood him against a hedge and said they were going to shoot him then and there. The senior was looking on, they holding her.

"I will give you a minute to get ready," said the officer.

"I am ready now," said the boy.

REFUSED TO BE SCARED.

They were not getting even the satisfaction of frightening him. They said they would postpone the shooting until later. All this time other of the troop were bolting down the McDonnell commissary. Between bites and gulps they would dun out and throw more McDonnell property into the flames.

Miss McDonnell said to one who looked as if he might have more character than the others: "Do you not despise yourself for what you are doing?" His answer, the others being out of hearing, was: "Don't blame me, Miss, I have to do it."

When the work was pretty well along they announced that they would now finish the job of shooting the boy. Miss McDonnell threw herself on them. They carried her to one side of the house, and the boy to the other, and there they made noisy preparation for the shooting, she on the other side of the house, waiting for the shots which would end him.

Again the boy refused to show fear, and again they did not shoot him. About that time Mr. and Mrs. McDonnell returned from mass. They saw the flames on the road from their trap. They jumped out of the trap and up the driveway.

The raiding party saw them, halted them, cut the horse loose from the trap, hauled that up to the burning house and threw it into the flames. That made five driving vehicles alone—traps, side and motor cars that they burned.

One son, an American citizen, was in Ireland at this time, but absent from his parents' house that day. They discovered his trunk, and also that he was an American, and through the trunk they went helping themselves to whatever they fancied. They stole even his safety razor blades.

ON "VACATION."

They took the boy with them. He is now in jail.

As they were going away, having no petrol left, they put a torch to the dairy. Neighbors rushed in after they were gone and saved most of it. And that little dairy, about fourteen feet square, is now a bedroom, dining, drawing room and kitchen for the old couple who had a house once fit to entertain a pompous Lord Lieutenant, if they cared to invite him.

The McDonnell girls, the girls of the college degrees and purity are living in a tent on the hill with the wonderful view. Two are dividing one bedtick, two another bedtick, and one a little narrow bedtick under a tent.

She smiled. "All McDonnells, nell with the heroine girl of this story when I saw her. A Miss McDonnell also, and I thought a sister; but she was a cousin. "I am from County Clare. I am here for my vacation," she said to me.

"Vacation? Here?" I looked around to the ruins of the place.

She laughed. "They did not even leave the dairy when they burned my father's place. There is another cousin who will be in Lare soon. They burned her father's place, too."

"A McDonnell, too?"

She smiled. "All McDonnells. We must be a terrible lot, don't you think?"

APOLOGIZED, BUT PAYS FINE FOR PART IN AFFRAY

Beatrice Dillard, about 25, colored, of East Lenox street, South End, claims she apologized for treading on the foot of Frances Bullen of Harrison avenue, but she paid a $15 fine in Municipal Court when found guilty of taking part in an affray. Frances and her sister Rosie, up on like charges, were discharged.

A petition asking a reduction in fares on the Eastern Massachusetts street railway between Randolph and Brockton is being circulated in Randolph.

Fresh From Paris

PARIS, France.

ALL the grace and charm that a formal hostess gown may possess are conveyed in the model above, worn by the seated figure. An overblouse of French blue velvet, having the becoming bateau neck line, is airily sleeved and glitteringly skirted in silver lace. The slender double train used for this gown illustrates the tendency of the new mode to shorten skirt fronts and introduce length only in the back.

GEORGETTE crepe is particularly well liked just now for the negligee, and in Chinese pink it is unusually appealing. The circular robe sketched at the left is of this tissue, accordion pleated, hanging straight from a bateau neck line that is banded with Chinese pink taffeta. About its skirt are large flowers of the taffeta with petals standing out from the crepe.

AMERICA ALONE IS HOPE OF RED MILLIONS

Cholera and Famine Waves Spreading Death Throughout Russia

Berlin, Aug. 2—More than ten million persons face death in Russia today.

The cholera wave is spreading, famine conditions are becoming worse every twenty-four hours and the morale of the people is on the verge of collapse.

Hundreds of thousands are in flight and the country in the Samara district are filled with unburied corpses, and practically all of the workshops are idle.

There is but one ray of hope today and it comes from the United States.

The news that America will aid Russia in easing a wave of relief in Germany, Poland and the Baltic states.

The city of Tambow has been sacked by hunger maddened mobs. Cab horses have been killed for human food.

In the Samara district where the cholera epidemic is spreading steadily the forsaken villages and the highways are filled with pants stricken children who have been deserted by their parents in a nightmare of horror.

The young children are dying on every hand and their wasted little bodies, hardly clothed, lie along the highways and in the fields.

Cats, dogs, rats and all wild animals of every description are being utilized as food. Grass and weeds are being cooked into soup.

The towns and villages are squalid with filth and all sanitary arrangements have collapsed.

U. S. Speeds Relief For Stricken Reds.

Washington, Aug. 2.—American relief for Russia's famine victims will be made possible without delay by complete acquiescence of the Soviet authorities to all conditions which may be prescribed by American government representatives, it was learned in official circles today.

The tone of the Soviet communication to Secretary Hoover made it evident that the authorities will give guarantees for the safety of American relief workers, and that they will interfere in no way with the control or distribution of relief supplies in western Russia.

Under instructions from Secretary Hoover, Walter L. Brown, director in Europe of the American Relief Administration, today was en route to Riga to open negotiations with Soviet representatives on conditions for the administration of the Russian relief program.

Brown is expected at Riga within a few days and if by that time all American prisoners have been released and outside Russian territory officials here believe nothing will arise to delay early inauguration of the relief plan.

Meanwhile, officials of the American relief administration are preparing to carry out the relief project, which will involve the expenditure of more than $1,250,000 a month to care for 1,000,000 children and adult invalids.

France Aids Poland for War on Soviet

Paris, Aug. 2.—The French government is spending 1,000,000 francs daily to aid Poland in preparing for war against Soviet Russia, according to a sensational accusation printed by the Socialist newspaper Humanite today.

The Socialist press is severely criticizing the government for refusing to participate in relief work for the Russian famine sufferers.

BUILDING TAKES BIG JUMP IN SPRINGFIELD

Springfield, Aug. 2.—July building took a big lead over other months of this year. Fifty-nine one-family houses were started and six four-family dwellings. Estimated cost of construction is given as $224,000. Total construction in July was $478,150 as compared to $513,478 in July of 1920.

IRENE CASTLE CHOKED BY ACTOR

Noted Film Star Goes to Hospital After Too Realistic Scene Before Camera

New York, Aug. 2.—A cave man choked Irene Castle so realistically that she is in the Women's Hospital severely ill. The widow of Vernon Castle, who was killed in an airplane accident three years ago, was acting before the camera for a new film at Englewood, N. J., when an over enthusiastic actor in one of the highly emotional episodes seized her by the neck.

This was on July 15. Next day her throat was highly discolored. She continued to play for several days, however, but on July 25 was taken to the hospital for treatment. She is now the wife of Captain Robert E. Treman, of Ithaca.

Episcopalians See the Value of Newspaper Advertising

The department of publicity of Episcopal churches in America has sent the following notice on advertising in the public press to all the churches in Massachusetts and New England.

This resolution was recently adopted at conferences in St. Louis and New York:

"The council having observed the undoubted effectiveness of church advertising in the daily newspapers, would call to the attention of pastors generally the advantages that have accrued from employing this method of teaching and holding the interest not only of church members but also of many who are outside of all church influence."

NEW MINISTRY IN ITALY IS SUSTAINED

Rome, Aug. 2.—A vote of confidence was given to the new government by the Italian Senate today. The question of government policy was brought into dispute and the Cabinet was sustained by a vote of 146 to 17.

'BUSINESS MEN' LINKED WITH 'ROBBER TRUST'

Bank Holdups, Mail Thefts Charged; Two Are Held

Chicago, Aug. 2—Several prominent business men of Chicago and New York are said today to be involved in a gigantic "thieves' trust" which is alleged to have looted the mails and banks of millions of dollars in cash and securities during the last year.

The arrest here of John W. Worthington, who, the police say, is the "brains" of the band, and Owen E. Evans, said to be his assistant, revealed the fact that a blanket indictment naming 26 conspirators had been voted by the grand jury. Names of others accused in the indictment are withheld pending the arrest.

Worthington, who has been arrested many times for alleged dubious financial schemes, and Evans, are in jail at Waukegan. They are held incommunicado.

MANY KILLED BY NEW QUAKES IN ITALY

Leghorn Residents Flee to Open Fields; Millionaire Is Victim as Bari

Milan, Aug. 2—Violent earthquakes were felt at Leghorn and vicinity today. Numerous deaths were caused at Bari by the collapse of the general postoffice building.

Eight bodies were recovered within a short time, and it was feared others were under the debris.

The greater part of the population of Leghorn fled from the city and is now camping in the open fields.

The monetary damage is heavy.

Among the victims at Bari was a Greek millionaire.

Rome, Aug. 2—Italy is undergoing a record hot wave. A score of persons have died of sunstroke within the last twenty-four hours.

Take Yeast Vitamon Tablets to Put On "Stay-There" Flesh

And Increase Your Energy Quickly, Easily and Surely at Small Cost

Why not be a Strong, well-built fellow with plenty of "pep" and energy—a clear skin glowing with ruddy health and vigor—instead of having a thin, undeveloped body that shows your lack of nerve force and physical power? Just take a little Yeast Vitamon for a short time and watch the truly amazing results.

IMPORTANT! While the amazing health-giving value of VITAMON has been clearly and positively demonstrated in cases of nervousness, skin troubles, anaemia, indigestion, constipation, skin eruptions, poor complexion and a generally weakened physical and mental condition, it should not be used by anyone who OBJECTS to having their weight increased to normal. Be sure to remember the name VI-TA-MON—the original and genuine yeast-vitamine tablet—there is nothing else like it. Get it at all good druggists, such as Houghton-Dutton, Shepard Stores, Epstein's, Walker Ristell's, Macy's 2 stores, Armstrong's 4 stores, Liggett's.

VI-TA-MON Is Positively Guaranteed To Put On Firm Flesh and Increase Energy when taken with Every Meal or Money Back.

GIRL OF FIFTEEN PREFERS JAIL SENTENCE TO ATTENDING SCHOOL

LET'S GO! Wrong again, Oscar, this wasn't taken at the North Pole. Shows Sigurd Johnson, winner of the annual skiing contest held this month at the Rainier National Park, Washington. Jumped 127 feet. "Keep cool" is queer advice for him. (U. & U.)

WATCH OUT, HOPPE! A. L. Gounddrill, the sensational one-armed billiard player of Britain, may soon come to America to take a fling at our champion's title. He recently played before royal family. Shows playing Irish champion. (K.)

NEW HEIGHTS! Olga Nethersole, remembered for her stage "Sapho," has decided to emulate Lady Astor and become a politician in England. She has announced her intention of running for House of Commons

SPORTING BLOOD! Just one of the many interesting scenes (right) caught at the Ascot (England) races. Latest modes and daring sights greet the eye. Note cigarette of woman on right. Smoking in public there is considered "good form" by the so-called fashionable set. (U. & U.).

"SHIMMY"! Zenzo Shimidzu (dubbed "Shimmy" by the public) is the most interesting character in tennis today. He is a cosmopolite, speaks six languages, and has traveled the world several times. Playing sterling game at the Newport matches.

A FLY LI'L FELLA! An improvement on the ordinary kiddie car permits this youngster to experience some of the sensations of flying, even though it doesn't actually leave the ground. H. M. Riser of No. 21 Heldun street, West Roxbury, made the improvements for his young son, George, shown astride the snappy vehicle.

LUCKY SEA! Edna Stark believes that the caressing waves at Manhattan Beach (N. Y.) are an aid to beauty. However, we know that Edna is herself an asset to any ocean, not to mention a cuple ponds or so. Snapped just before her beauty plunge. We almost forgot she's a Winter Garden chorine. (U. & U.)

THIS LITTLE PIGGIE HAD A SWIM! Margie Van Camp of Coney Island has some queer pigs. They like to bathe. Magie is shown giving the cute little porker his first swimming lesson. (K.)

A ROUGH RIDIN' FOOL! That's what they call "Kinx" Jenkins of Texas (left). When asked to take a ride in a plane wouldn't consent until they strapped a saddle onto it. Shot sea gulls in this manner. (K. & H.)

EXTRY! Miss Ethel Morganstein, actually won first prize in Washington bathing beauty contest because of her pretty face and not by her trick sea suit or smart figure. (Int.)

GLADYS M. DIXON of No. 29 Pearson avenue, Somerville, wins $5 for this photo. Friday a photo purporting to be Ann Dowsley of Malden was published in good faith. The picture was, we learn, that of Phyllis Haver, California bathing beauty. This type of joker is liable under the law. Avoid trouble. Honest sea photos always welcome.

SENSITIVE! Anna Popertsky, 15, dubbed "baby hippo" by school mates because of her 6 feet 2 inches height and 210 pounds in weight, she refused to go to school. Rather than pay a fine for non-attendance, she served day in jail. Lives in N. Y. (Int.)

ONE SECOND after this photo was taken, C. Du Pont, son of the financier, was plunged headlong and severely hurt when his mount stumbled at Monmouth horse show, L. I.

CHERRY BLOSSOMS AND NIPPONESE JOY BELLS! In the quaint atmosphere of their homeland, two young Japanese couples were married in New York the other day with the native ceremony, a ritual strange and interesting to the Western world. The officiators at the nuptials were Prof. Hideo Kimura and his cute wife, famous health healers of Nippon. They are shown in the centre, with the brides and grooms facing each other. Mr. and Mrs. Ichio Noda and Mr. and Mrs. Naseketa Katayama were wedded "upon the honor of their own wisdom." Photo shows the brides tasting the food before the groums. (Int.)

"In the Evenings," Writes Quarren to Strelsa, "Miss Vining Dines With Dankmere and Myself at Some Nearby Restaurant"

The Story of a Beautiful Girl and the Man for Whom She Made a Great Sacrifice

WHAT HAS HAPPENED.

Dick Quarren, society idler and spendthrift, but clever and good looking, has fallen desperately in love with Strelsa Leeds. She has had one unfortunate matrimonial experience, and since her advent into New York high society has admirers by the score. Quarren meets her first at a masked ball given by Molly Wetherby, wins an hour out of her life on a wager and refrains from kissing her, as he tells her he is eager to do. She tells him there can be nothing serious between them, but she asks him to always think well of her. FINANCE AND BUSINESS

By B. C. Forbes

A rational amount of success is not so very hard to attain.

All that is necessary for one to do, and keep on doing, the best and the most of which he is capable, and live decently and simply.

* * *

Almost the first world-beating business built up in America was the Standard Oil Company. Its founder and foremost developer was John D. Rockefeller. When I asked him how he did it, and whether he conceived the whole structure when he first started to build, Mr. Rockefeller replied: "Oh, no. We just did our day's work the best we knew how, and things gradually grew far beyond our expectations."

"We just did our day's work the best we knew how."

The more I analyze the lives of men who have done things, the more convinced I am that there is no "secret" of success and that the whole matter was accurately summed up by Mr. Rockefeller in these few words.

* * *

This train of thought has been started by a conversation I've just had with a youthful applicant for a job. He began by telling me that he was very anxious to get some steady work and that he felt confident he could make good in it. Quite early in the interview, however, he asked: "What are the hours?" I asked him why he asked such a question. He replied evasively. I impressed upon him that we were more concerned about getting our day's work done, and done in the very best way we could do it, than we were about getting finished early. When, finally, I said that as a rule the hours would be from ten to about six, or sometimes a little later, the youth immediately replied: "That's too long," and he reached for his hat.

* * *

I learned from this youth who thought he was a salesman, that he had been working only from ten to three-thirty, running messages for a Wall Street firm. He didn't like the work and had no intention of staying at it. He aspired to become a newspaperman. Yet, when the door was open for him to enter, he balked because, forsooth, he would have to work seven or seven and a half hours a day.

* * *

I know another young man who is quite sure that he wants to get on. Yet the only reason he can assign unto him to be on hand punctually in the morning. When the employer has to mention the hours of work to be done in the morning, he is never quite sure whether this employe will arrive in time to undertake it.

* * *

In the business world there are not a few men and women who are planning prudently about how impossible it is to accomplish anything. Instead of redoubling their efforts they have developed inferiority complexes. They have made up their minds that it's no use trying to do anything of the largest in the history of the company.

* * *

The parents of our modern labor unions were the "guilds" of last centuries and earlier. No man was admitted to membership until he had proved his worth as a capable craftsman, or merchant, or whatever trade or profession the guild embraced. Members took pride in the quality of their output. Unhappily, the average trade union today makes no claim that it does anything to foster craftsmanship, or either pride in output or increases in output. Their whole tendency is to scheme and fight for shorter and shorter hours.

* * *

Now, I know intimately the careers of a great many men who have risen from the ranks and won prominent positions in the world. But I do not know of one who would have balked at an opportunity to get into the business he wanted to get into had he been told that the working hours were normally long. I do not know one conspicuously successful business man who cared a snap of his fingers when a young man whether he worked ten, eleven or twelve hours a day or whether the circumstances demanded still longer sessions temporarily.

* * *

Last week I delved into the reasons for the success of a certain concern which has become the acknowledged leader in its field. I found to my astonishment that on occasion a very difficult problem arose. To solve it would entail an enormous amount of research and work, without any assurance that the desired result would be achieved. The founder and head of the business, however, threw himself into the job with all the zest of a pioneer. To have the task completed in time it was necessary for him and his associates to work continuously for forty-eight hours and more. The result exceeded those who had propounded the problem, so thoroughly and exhaustively had the job been done. The immediate fruit was a substantial contract, but, as so often happens, the good work then done proved the foundation for much bigger things, and the concern rose under it towered above all in its field.

* * *

The youth who is afraid of doing 6 reasonable day's work, the employe who does not exert himself to earn the confidence of his employer, the business man who lies down under difficulties instead of striving to surmount them—can they complain if they never achieve success?

STOCK TRADING PREVENTED BY FIRE

N. Y. Exchange Adjourned as Soon as Called to Order at Regular Hour

Trading on the New York Stock Exchange did not begin at the usual hour because of fire which started on the fourth floor of the new addition to the exchange building at Broad and Wall streets. While flames were quickly brought under control, smoke filled the building and a landing back of one of the annunciator boards caught fire and the board itself was soon ablaze.

Owing to smoke in the trading room the governors adjourned the stock exchange immediately after the gong had been sounded to order, at the usual time. It was then stated that trading would not be resumed before the hour was set at noon.

The firemen brought several lines of hose upon the burning floors and turned streams upon the burning board from that vantage point.

STOCK SCARCITY GIVES MARKET FIRM TONE

By BROADAN WALL.

Reflected U. S. Patent Office.

New York, Aug. 2.—Although call money advanced to 5½ per cent. on the Stock Exchange as well at outside of that institution, the stock market displayed a strong undertone Monday with most issues closing with appearances of from one to two points. Strength was due in the absence of unfavorable developments over Sunday and the fact that stocks are becoming scarce. This is declared to be particularly true of Steel common and which there is a large short interest. Toward the close the market became dull and recuperated. Prices however, characterized the close.

Professional bear operations attempted to attach considerable significance to the readjustment of the Fisk Rubber capitalization and offered other tire shares in liberal volume.

IMPROVEMENT SHOWN.

Stocks identified with other line manufacturing companies said they did not believe this readjustment would affect other shares to as much as the tire business is showing improvement. Reilly & Wilson's report just out its volume of sales is showing steady expansion.

Reports of increased activity in the Youngstown district seemed to offset much of the unfavorable effect of the Steel corporation's poor earnings to be shown by the steel companies this quarter.

RESPONSIBLE FOR ATTACK.

This group was largely responsible last week for the attack on the General Motors and other equipment issues. Chandler Motor retreated nearly three points. The professional bears of the leaders of the company who have "scale-downs" buying there in large amounts. There is a large short interest in Chandler. It is understood to be the largest in the history of the company.

Rumors of a forthcoming upward movement in General Motors were again in circulation. No information, however, is obtainable as to its probable time for putting the shares up. This is a time when stocks cannot be talked up.

Stocks of sugar companies are being regarded with more favor owing to the improvement that is taking place in the market for raw sugar. Additional strength was shown by raw sugar.

Rumors were current that Germany proposed entering the market for 1,000,000 tons of sugar, but bankers characterized the report as "bunk."

Rail Earnings

For the period between March 1 and December 31 last year the Great Northern Railway reported gross earnings of $79,000,000, net earnings, $19,000,000, and surplus, $5,617,402, according to the annual report just issued. For the calendar year 1920 the corporation's income was $27,501,719; deductions, $7,884,317; net income, $19,617,402; gross income, $79,004,097; dividend, $17,262,941; surplus, $2,354,461. For the year 1919 the company's annual appropriations were $11,262,941, leaving a surplus of $1,315,497.

Net operating income for the year ended $217,036 in June and is against $1,478,525 in net operating income for the year ended June 30, 1920. Gross for 1921 declined to $2,703,763 from $3,926,288 and net to $1,478,525 from $2,633,512 in 1920. Gross and net for the year ended June 30, 1919, were $2,633,512 and $1,478,525, respectively.

Net operating revenues for railroads aggregated $46,000,000 for April, $46,000,000 for May and $50,000,000 for June, Julius Barnes announced in behalf of the railroad war board. The net operating revenues for April, May and June of 1920 were $70,000,000, $72,000,000 and $75,000,000, respectively. The Cummins-Esch Act said the roads should be permitted to earn 6 per cent.

The Southern Railway reported for the month of June gross of $6,000,000 and net operating income of $1,000,000. For the six months ended June 30 gross was $38,000,000 and net $4,838,177. For June last year, For the six months ended June 30 last year gross was $37,000,000 and net $11,713,613.

Colorado Southern gross decreased $77,971 in the third week of July and since January 1 decreased $1,000,000.

Corporation Reports

For the June quarter of this year the New York Central reported net of $18,922,122, after charges and taxes of $18,922,122, equivalent to 2.16 per share on 8,750,000 shares of stock. The Illinois Central reported net for the quarter of $3,000,000, equivalent to $3.75 a share on 800,000 shares of stock. For the six months ended June 30 net was $4,838,177, equivalent to $6.05 a share, leaving net as annual rate of $12.10 a share. For the first six months of 1920 net was $11,713,613, equivalent to $14.64 a share.

Reading & Co. sales for July decreased 36.24 per cent. from the corresponding month last year. The decrease for the seven months to July 31 was 28.50 per cent.

Dividend Declarations

Lee Rubber & Tire Co. declared quarterly dividend of 2½ per cent, payable September 15 to holders of record August 15.

Kennecott Copper Company declared quarterly dividend of $2, payable August 15 to holders of record July 28.

CHARGE OF RECEIVING STOLEN NECKTIES

Harry Cohen, 44, of Eaton street, Dorchester, and Max Levine, 24, of Poplar street, and Benjamin Levine, 23, of Columbus avenue, South End, were arrested by officers from headquarters on a charge of receiving stolen neckties valued at $88, reported stolen from Neiman Brothers, 11 Albany street, South End. Police said the men were apprehended attempting to sell the neckwear when they were apprehended. The court continued the hearing to August 15.

Cash Rates Reduced

Rates for buying and selling stocks and bonds were reduced to one-quarter of one per cent. by the Boston Curb Exchange association which continues to do business on Broad street, New York. The new rates are 2 per cent. of the amount involved on all securities selling under $1 a share; $3.12 a hundred for all securities selling between $1 and $5; $6.25 a hundred for those selling between $5 and $10, and $12.50 for those selling over $10 a share. The minimum commission on any transaction is $1.

Savings Becoming Depleted

Concerning the labor situation it is stated in the Federal Reserve Bank bulletin that there is practically no change has occurred in employment, and labor authorities report the savings of men for some time out of work, as well as unemployment funds of trade unions, are becoming seriously depleted. The fact that there is no resumption of full production has become very acute in not a few districts and has apparently put a stop to operation of plants on a non-profit-making basis, but with wages scales correspondingly reduced or employes working part time."

Chinese Study Leather

Peking, Aug. 2.—The Peking University is about to introduce into its curriculum a course in tanning. Professor Chen Chuntsoo "leather" will be required to spend twelve hours a week in the practical work of tanning, as well as being supplied with modern leather working machinery from the United States and stocked with the latest chemicals and dyes and the most improved tanning compounds.

DEMAND FOR SECURITIES FIRMER

Upward Trend Regarded in Some Quarters as Forecast of Trade Revival

By C. T. EVANS.

Chicago, Aug. 2.—Stocks, so far as like the gray for is it yellow or in the stock market unnoticed by most but milling about, the light in all things American that is coming sometime. It is nearly two years ago that the list began to whisper to those with the keenest ears that once again the depressed holders of securities. It was a prophecy of what we have had this year and earlier. It is a question in some good brains whether they are ing what we have now is not a beginning of a great rise and estate of improvement in trade in general later on.

The trouble heretofore has been that enterprise made its appearance and perhaps most of the stock advanced a little but it and once Baldwin pfd., or Studen Globe common took a sudden turn and the public would follow. One really cannot ignore such declines when they are followed by such rises. Yet, as one broker put it today, the list in general is still buy on the dips of this year, and with "hold you so" in his voice he remarked that optimism was not suggesting that you buy stocks for thirty days. It is really reasonable to believe that you cannot now make purchases and within a reasonable time mark up dollars or them were sold in moderate lots in the La Salle street pandemonium and the country reckoned equally well. The issue is 100 per cent. oversubscribed and the bonds are closed.

TEXAS OIL UP.

Another corporation favorite in the oil group drove on its stock today. Texas Co. which early this year sold at 75, reached 38¾ over the wire today. The statement may be made on authority that the company is in a position to dividend, and that is a mild way of setting forth its condition. Texas Co. is counted to profit greatly in the long run on the present conditions in the trade. The three companies have accumulated a good deal of credit and if they should be forced to borrow under the effect of a reduction in output in the price of the commodity. This is by no means to expect, however, that Texas Co. will be followed by the Texas Oil during the remainder of the week.

This city is interested to a considerable extent in the Pan American companies, the associated concerns, painfully so inasmuch as that class of investment money hundred thousand has a run of luck as any in the list. The plan by which the Pan American Petroleum & Transport Co. acquires its subsidiaries, the Federal Rubber Company, is figured to be a little more in rank with the odor of this commodity, which has spoiled even the digestion of holders of United States Rubber and which embodies in its history the name of Charles R. Flint, many of the unfortunate things of finance and commerce the past year or two. How the Flint people were caught on inventory is shown by statements already made of $5,000,000 which worked a deficit in place of a surplus. That is what the Rubber deal with the Standard, which no longer exist. The remedy is the usual one of a levy, which in this instance will be $10,000,000.

SEARS ROEBUCK SALES SUMP.

With these companies it is a matter of paying up for equities. Sears Roebuck & Company, of this city, the case is a little different. There is no question of the shrinkage in the loss on inventory but the unpleasantly interesting fact that one month in the sales department, which for July shows a decrease of 36.24 per cent. from the corresponding months of last year, and 36.23 for seven months. Can stocks go up under these conditions? Yes, but do not trust them too far.

Railroad Items

A Washington report is that the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western road has settled with the government for refunding $7,000,000 of claims while under Federal control.

The Pere Marquette reported bad order cars at 15.9 per cent., of total cars owned by the road, against 25.5 per cent. on July 1.

Tentative valuation by the Interstate Commerce Commission of St. Louis and Southwestern Railway Company is $20,072,479 exclusive of the road's bonded indebtedness.

Railroad and industrial corporations issued securities during the first week of August, aggregating $170,474,000, compared with $2,602,000 in July, and $1,000,000 in January. Equities involved in the August offerings aggregated $1,472,000, as against $21,000,000 in the first seven months of 1920. During August manufacturing companies offered $82,100,387, as against $350,270,885 in July.

WALL ST. GOSSIP

By MONITOR

NEW YORK, Aug. 2—Although the general market failed to maintain all the gains established during the earlier brisk forenoon of trading, the undertone was fairly steady in the face of considerable profit taking. The ruling call money to 5% per cent. after a rebound rate of 4% per cent., resulted in some selling, but this appeared to be largely for the account of some of the last week's buyers.

PROFESSIONALS appear working at present on the long side of the rails, and no lone wolf bears come chiefly from this source no large or sustained unsold interest is likely to develop. "Scalping" for points or fractions may furnish a rotary market for outside buyers and sellers, but it is never safe for an extended movement in either direction.

ABOUT the only speculative feature of interest was furnished by the August crop report, the condition of cotton, which proved the condition of cotton, which proved the condition of surprise, and sent prices up 50 points. Sugar stocks were appearing upward affected by reports that certain Cuban interests were making inquiries to the United States government with a view to obtaining a price on a million tons of sugar. This was construed as indicating that Europe was bare of supplies.

COVERING was largely responsible for the strength displayed by the market in the forenoon. The rails were foremost in the upward trend. Northern Pacific, Great Northern, Southern Pacific and Rock Island were the leaders in the advance. U. S. Steel crossed 75 and gave tone to the steel group.

FISK TIRE AND RUBBER furnished one of the few weak features of the market as a result of a report that a special meeting of stockholders had been called for the purpose of acting upon a readjustment of the capital stock and debt of the corporation and to change the par value of the common stocks from $25 a share to no par. The stockholders also will be asked to vote on the proposal to acquire the ownership of the Federal Rubber Co. or the Singleton Co. or both. This would call for an issue of new bonds contemplated to be about $10,000,000 or 25% of the amount in addition to increase. There is also a proposal to increase the authorized issues of the first and second preferred stocks and the common stock.

THE STRIKING incident of the day was furnished by the monthly report on the condition of the cotton crop issued by the Department of Agriculture. This report was a decided surprise to the trade as it placed the condition of the crop at 64.7, compared with 69.2 at the end of June, while the indicated crop is estimated at 8,202,000 bales, a shrinkage of about 250,000 bales. A supplementary report issued by the bureau laid great emphasis on damage by the boll weevil, and stated that the crop heretofore will be exposed either to damage from the drought or injury from the weevil or both. The weather should be showery. The active options advanced over $4 per bale in an excited market.

STUDEBAKER proved somewhat of a disappointment in view of the statement for the second quarter, which showed earnings equivalent to only 17 cents per share less than a full year's dividend. Bank loans have been liquidated, and the sales account of June 30 is said to be nearly $2,000,000 above that of January 1, and inventories have been cut from $28,000,000 to less than $21,000,000.

AMERICAN WOOLEN was quite firm in the early trading on the publication of the announcement that the sales for next Spring which opened last Monday had resulted in clearing up nearly all of the lines that had been opened. The product of one of the largest mills is sold up and withdrawn from the market. The sale of overalls have been particularly brisk.

ABOUT the strongest group in the market consisted of the gas stocks, with Consolidated Gas leading.

The voluntary reduction in rates by this company which went into effect last July gives evidence of the reduced cost of operation as a result of the lower prices of coal, particularly gas oil. Laclede Gas and Peoples Gas Light are now quoted at a much higher than a year ago, and the latter company is expected to place its stock on a dividend basis in the near future.

SHORTS in United Fruit were inclined to action as a result of published estimates to the effect that the company had earned more than $11 per share on the outstanding stock in the first six months of this year. Earnings for the second half of the year are expected to be about $1,000,000 per month, which would be about $17 per share for the full year, or about twice the present dividend requirements of $8 per share.

Coal Output is Less

Soft coal production during the July 23 week is estimated at 7,369,000 net tons, a decrease of 34,000 tons as compared with the previous week. The anthracite output is figured at 1,837,000 net tons.

Singular Position of the Standard Oils

The present distracting condition of the oil industry peculiarly affects the Standard Oil group of companies.

We have prepared a special review pointing out the salient features. Copies distributed free to those interested.

Participation in any other contest which has been run, which is now running or which may be run by the Boston American will not debar any reader from entering this one.

Every participant and all members of a family will be allowed to submit one set of guesses, but no set must contain more than 50 titles to each picture, and 50 participant will be allowed to submit more than one set, but not more than one award shall be given to any one family.

Each title must be written plainly, write or typewrite on the coupon furnished by the Boston American, or on a copy of same in the form or itself accompanied either by the coupon clipped from the paper or a copy of it, and no other form will be accepted, and must have the name, residence, etc., of the participant on each coupon.

Do not send your titles in "list" form, i. e., do not write "title under title" and number as a guide.

In case there are not complete sets of correct titles awards will be given to the person submitting the nearest correct solutions. Ethics will be used in all cases.

In case of a tie award will be made on the basis of neatness, style and the one sent in first.

Under no circumstances should participants send in their titles before the test starts on June 29, for any such to be in hand will cause the printed will not be considered. KEEP your titles from day to day and to end of the test arrange them in numerical order and number them 1 to 50 in the order in which they appear. Neatness will be a factor in deciding the award. The first title sent in after the first closes will stand no better than if last submitted.

All titles must be delivered to the Boston American office in accordance with the following date: Boston 8, Mass., either by mail or in person which no unsolved date limit which will be announced later.

All envelopes or packages containing titles must be legibly addressed as follows: "Song Test Editor, Boston American, Boston, Mass." and the words "Song Test" and each envelope or package must bear the name and address of the sender legibly written or stamped on the upper left-hand corner.

All titles sent in to the Test will contain written or printed matter, mailed, it is absolutely necessary that the name and address of several or every letter from each individual character goes to the postoffice as first-class matter. The Boston American reserves the right to refuse to consider any sets of titles which do not appear for postal delivery as described.

There will be no title or answer book in full sent out from the office. All questions and answers must be sent in to the Boston American. The last answering will contain the correct titles to all pictures.

Participants who prefer further information should address their inquiries to the Song Title Editor, Boston American, Boston 8, Mass., and not to the individuals connected with the Boston American. If participants prefer personal replies, they should enclose sufficient postage for such a reply, as they may obtain Main 3100 Ext. 1.

The Boston American reserves the right to make such changes in the rules as it may consider necessary for fairly conducting the contest in order that the spirit of the rules of the Boston American Song Title Test may be carried out, and the entry of participants in a complete acceptance of all conditions and regulations as above or to be made.

PLAN FOR FUNERAL OF WINCHESTER POSTMASTER

Funeral arrangements for the late John F. O'Connor, forty-six years old, former postmaster at Winchester, who died at his home, No. 29 Nelson street, Winchester, after an illness of several months, are being completed today.

Mr. O'Connor had been a druggist in Winchester, where he was born, for more than seventeen years. Four years ago he was appointed postmaster by the late Woodrow Wilson. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Catherine O'Connor; two sons, Dr. James H. and Edward M. O'Connor, both dentists, and a daughter, Miss Helen O'Connor.

3202 APPLICANTS FOR CITIZENS' CAMP

The total number of applications in the First Corps Area, for the Citizens' Military Training Camp which opened yesterday at Camp Devens, is 3,202. This is the smallest number of applicants for this camp of the nine corps areas. About fifteen men did not show up at the camp and alternates will be assigned to their places.

BOSTON STRIKE BREAKERS USED IN VERMONT

Union Worker Swims Connecticut River and Vainly Appeals to Men to Quit

Bellows Falls, Vt., Aug. 2.—About twenty-five more workmen arrived here to enter the employ of the Champlain Realty Company. Troops guarded the new arrivals when they alighted from the train which bore them from Boston, and they were taken at once in two trucks to the camp of the company on the river bank, just above this town.

As on Saturday the militiamen guarded the workmen on the incoming group of men were whisked away to the camp site. No demonstration save a little jeering from the few strikers who witnessed the arrival.

Placards reading "On strike" and "Strikebreakers not wanted here." Copies of this placard were displayed today in the windows of some local restaurants and stores.

The Realty Company began the work of "stringing" the log boom, a preliminary to the installation of dredging operations on the big drive which has laid in local waters for two months. A striker began the job early in the day this afternoon and tried to persuade the workmen to quit the job, but with no success.

With about forty men available out of the total force of 100 men needed on the job, it is expected that work on the part of the Realty Company will go actively ahead. This will mean the arrival of more men from other cities unless the local situation is settled.

Debt Should Not Be Funded

Uncle Sam Would Be in Safer Position If Able to Call the Loans at Pleasure

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

Senator Borah objects to the proposed funding of the debt owed us by Great Britain and France, upon the ground—

First, that it would not help us to establish evidence of the debt, and,

Second, that it would prevent us from using the debt to compel Great Britain and France to abandon their imperialistic intrigues and oppressions throughout the world, in which they are able to indulge by maintaining a costly armament; but which they could not maintain if they were obliged to pay their indebtedness to us.

We entirely agree with Senator Borah. But there are other reasons quite as strong against the proposed funding of the debt. To fund the debt is to deprive us of being able to call upon France and England to pay the debt whenever we think they ought to pay it. To fund this debt would be to make England and France a long-time debtor, and would reverse our relative positions.

The debt when funded, instead of giving us influence over our debtors, would be very likely to give them a great deal of influence over us, because we would be in constant danger of their repudiating or becoming unable to pay their debt.

We now hold "notes" of the foreign governments payable on demand. If this debt were funded it would tie us indefinitely to the chariot wheels of Great Britain and France, with all their wretched scythes for the emasculation of helpless peoples.

What we want to do is to get rid of this debt as quickly as we can. We cannot expect France and Great Britain to pay the whole of it at once, without absolutely crippling both nations, which we would not want to do to any friendly nation. But we can make an estimate of what it is costing these two nations to carry on their illicit military and naval enterprises, in other words, what it is costing them for their wicked imperialism, and we can induce them to abandon these enterprises and pay their cost to us in discharge of the debt.

Dr. Addison, who has just resigned from the British Cabinet, told the House of Commons the other day that Great Britain was spending over one hundred million dollars a year in Mesopotamia alone. Mesopotamia is only one of the parts of the world where Great Britain is forcing her imperialism.

The abandonment of these enterprises, taken together with her retrenchment of her naval expeditures, would enable her in a very few years to pay her debts.

What she could not pay by reasonable retrenchment in the costs of her imperialistic schemes, she could pay by selling to us the West Indies Islands, which are the outposts of our Panama Canal, and a source of danger to us in case of future trouble. They are not of any value to Great Britain except against us. They are a part of the American continent and ought to belong to us.

Let us, therefore, abandon the idea of funding the debt and negotiate with Great Britain and France for a settlement of their obligations.

Britain, because she needs more, and her imperialistic schemes

We could give France more time than we could give Great are so expensive for her that she will soon be obliged to abandon them, even if we were foolish enough to continue to finance them by relieving her of her obligations to pay what she owes us.

N. E. Roads Deserve Relief

But Entire Situation Cannot Be Settled Permanently Until Government Resumes Control

No New Englander who reads the dissenting opinion of Commissioner Eastman of the Interstate Commerce Commission, in the opinion rendered on the complaint of the New England railroads that the divisions of the joint freight rates are unfavorable to them, can fail to believe that Mr. Eastman has put the case of the New England railroads beyond successful challenge.

Indeed, the majority of the Interstate Commerce Commission admits that the New England railroads are unjustly treated in the division of the freight between the New England railroads and the other railroads which have shared in the transportation of the freight. But the majority opinion holds that New England railroads and New England must continue to suffer unjustly and even at the peril of being pushed over the brink of bankruptcy, until the long, tedious, complex and perhaps impossible task is performed of analyzing all of the grotesque, inconsistent, arbitrary and often dishonest rates which have been established by the railroads under incompetent and corrupt private management.

As Mr. Eastman says, if the New England railroads are to obtain relief "which would be of avail against impending financial danger, it is necessary for them to move quickly and deal broadly with the situation and they have made out a case justifying temporary relief, pending more detailed consideration of specific divisions."

We all understand that the wretched condition of the New England railroads is due to wretched private management. But it was not New England management. It was Wall street management, and the worst fault of New England lay in the cowardice and ignorance of some of its business elements, who were and to a considerable degree now are intellectually and morally subservient to the active, assertive New York bankers.

We know perfectly well that the situation can never be permanently corrected until the government resumes the operation of all the railroads. But in the meantime, New England ought not to be made to suffer because the majority of the commission are not yet prepared to deal with the question as a whole, although they perfectly well could, without injustice to any part of the problem, give New England temporary relief.

Don't Rock the Boat

Five Cents Savings Bank Declared Sound by Those in Whom We Have the Greatest Confidence

How silly it is for people to start a run on a bank.

It is like the undisciplined panic of the passengers of a vessel they think is sinking, crowding into the small boats and thus to overturn and to drown themselves; or at the cry of fire in a theatre, jamming the doors so that no one can get out.

If a bank is sound and a run is started on it, the bank may be ruined. If the bank is unsound, payments will be stopped almost before the run begins. So that a run on the bank, the wild hysterical rush to get your money, never does any good to you and may do you a great deal of harm by wrecking your bank.

The Five Cents Savings Bank is said to be sound. Those in whom we have the greatest confidence take the responsibility of saying so, and the Boston American takes the responsibility of advising everybody to sit tight and not to rock the boat. We do not believe that the big banks and banking interests in this town intend to let any more small banks go to the wall. It is bad business

Results to Date of Prohibition

"What Has Prohibition Actually Accomplished to Date?" asked William Randolph Hearst editorially in the Boston American of July 3. One hundred dollars will be paid for the best answer of not more than 150 words.

Congress Incapable

Editor Boston American:

Prohibition has proven to the American public that Congress is no longer capable of enacting laws for the welfare of the people. It is partly responsible for the failing of our Merchant Marine as the tourist and business man refuse to travel on "dry" ships when "wet" ships can be had.

It has taken from the treasury an immense sum to make a bluff at enforcing it, together with the revenue it did produce, to the government. It is liberating the prisoners in "short time" institutions and filling overflowing the blind and insane asylums.

It is causing more poverty to the family of the habitual drunkard than before, because where he used to get a glass of whiskey, "well-watered," for ten cents he is now getting a glass of poison for fifty cents.

Home is Happier

Editor Boston American:

It is yet too soon to see much benefit. It is a matter of growth. Even now the home is happier, wives know there are no saloons where husbands may drink and waste time. Home brew will soon be an old story. Prohibition acts like a red rag on Taurus, and men are beside themselves with rage. Never mind, the greatest curse of the age is being downed.

A State that cannot exist without the money gained by license ought to fall into the depths of degradation—with the miserable drink it makes.

Prohibition has raised the State in the estimation of millions of citizens who have felt ashamed and humiliated at its greed in taking money gained by sinking the divine human made in the image of God into the base whiskey habit. Millions of us now look up to the State with gratitude.

FRIENDSHIP

Are you a sympathetic companion to the individual members of your family or are you the old pessimist?

Are you capable of seeing into the future and distinguishing between material and spiritual gains?

Don't be so sordid that you measure every effort by the actual dollars and cents in hand.

Do not belittle another's efforts just because you do not find yourself able to see and understand the line of thinking which keeps them going.

And then if things seem blue and the result not worth the effort, do not be the one to drop the last straw—a word of reproach and recrimination instead of appreciating the mighty efforts for what they are really worth.

There are some persons today who are supposed to be the best of friends and they are the closest companions, but they would be surprised to know that in the big things of life one or the other is barred because of a feeling of lack of understanding.

Understanding and inspiration go hand in hand.

Have you ever tried to be the spiritual guide to your closest associate?

If not you have missed the greatest satisfaction in life.

London Holiday City of World

LONDON, Aug. 2.—It is nearly high tide in London, at the present time.

The season which used to culminate with Ascot is still going strong and the stream of visitors from all parts of the world is still flowing. The end of the coal stoppage has brought thousands more people up from the provinces, and London is full.

Not since the war have there been so many nationalities in London as at the present time. The Imperial Conference has brought visitors from all the Dominions and from India. There is a sprinkling of Egyptians here on their own account. Chinese are more numerous than ever, and all the nations of Europe seem to have sent delegates bent on politics, commerce, or pleasure.

Hotels are doing good business, and the crowds in the vestibules and lounges are more cosmopolitan than they ever were before the war. The American, with his typical hat, his horn-rimmed spectacles, and his serious look, is to be seen in every street, generally accompanied by his wife and daughter. Scandinavians and Spaniards, French folk and Italians, with an occasional German thrown in, are to be seen around the tables in the hotel restaurants.

London has come to be recognized as the holiday city of the world. All the people from afar who have drifted here during the war have sounded its praises, and their fellow countrymen trickle here from all parts of the globe. The easiest way of hearing conversational talk in almost any European language just now is to ride about the centre and West End of London on the top of modern omnibuses.

BETTER LET A BAD WIFE GO HER WAY

By Nellie Bly

"SHE wanted to elope, and he had consented to elope with her.

"But after he had turned the car and proceeded a little way in the direction from her home, he reconsidered, turned the car around again and started back to her home. He told her that an elopement was not a good thing, but the best thing to do was to go back to her home and tell her family of their reconciliation and re-engagement.

"She was disappointed, but had to submit. Her folks were all very pleased to hear what had taken place, and her mother expressed her disappointment that they had not eloped, but her fiance remained firm.

"He made his contemplated trip, and she did not leave her home during his absence. Immediately upon his return there was an engagement reception when he presented her with a most beautiful engagement ring.

"After an engagement which lasted over nine months they were married. There was a honeymoon trip to the Pacific Coast which lasted a month, and during this period and for nine months afterwards, which they spent in a lovely home, there could never be more bliss than existed there. They were the most loving couple.

Couldn't Stand Hardship.

"About this time business conditions brought on worries which kept her husband under considerable strain. It was soon evident that a little hardship or a bit of economizing gave her displeasure. Her actions toward her husband led everyone to believe that if there was not plenty of money there could not be any love.

"To keep pace he consented to break up the home and store the household goods. She wanted to live in the city so as to be near her folks. This was his greatest mistake. It became evident that she was completely under their influence, and instead of making an effort to assist the couple, every obstacle was put in his way. No consideration was shown for him.

"This young man's character has always been unstained; never a mark to show that he had ever stepped from the straight and narrow path, but like every human being in his state of mind, his financial condition hopeless, and knowing there could be a helping hand, but none was offered, he became desperate. His wife would not even offer encouragement, but only looked out for her own selfish pleasures. His father-in-law made no suggestion or offer of assistance.

"An opportunity came which looked legitimate, but it happened to be otherwise, and his wife never even gave him her moral support. She only tried to make life more miserable for him. She continually found fault. I know this young man is as clean as can be, and even though he did permit himself to make one mistake it does not mean that he is not a real man. He has again started in business for himself and has practically made good, but his wife insists that she does not love him any more and cannot live with him.

"She has treated to all in a very disgraceful manner towards her husband, and until recently he has been foolish enough to run after her and beg her to return to him. But now he has stopped that. After a certain step of hers he took a determined stand and will not again ask her to return to him.

Won't Consent to Divorce

"Her husband will not, under any circumstances, consent to divorce. He feels that if she returns to him it will be possible for her to overcome her unfounded bitterness and to realize how foolish she has been. He maintains that he still loves her dearly and will again make her happy, but intends to use other methods than he has used previously.

"I beg of you again, Miss Bly, that you suggest or offer a way for this marital trouble to be smoothed out.

"Very truly yours,

Forget her. You can't make a good wife out of a bad one any more than you can make a silk purse out of a sow's ear.

Two Ships

By JOHN DRINKWATER

The morning shone with April on
A little silver ship at sea,
With sails set and bearing bales
To Panama from Tripoli,
And fortunately bound
She went without a sound.

Into the night, forlornly bright
There came a little ship of gold;
Without a name, she passed in flame,
With cargoes never to be told:
Out of a port unknown,
Swinging to death alone.

HOW EASILY A MASTER DOES HIS WORK

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

HOW easy is mastery—to the master!

Watch anyone at work who is master of his craft, and you will recognize how simple a matter mastery is—to the master.

Perhaps you have heard Caruso sing, either in public on the operatic stage, or in private for you personally, through your phonograph. As there flowed from his golden throat those profuse strains of seemingly unpremeditated art, haven't you felt that you could go and do likewise?

The master or mistress of song makes singing seem easy and matter of course.

Doubtless, you have heard some eloquent speakers, and you have been deeply touched and moved by their thought and speech. Probably, even more, you were impressed with the seeming simplicity of public speaking. You could do as well, you felt, if you had the cause and the opportunity.

Watch Artist Work

Or, you have watched an artist with apparent recklessness, dash paint on canvas and call forth deathless beauty. Almost, you imagined, you, too, could as easily splash at a ten-league canvas with brushes of comet's hair, and work for an age at a sitting and never be tired at all!

It may be that you are not habitually wise enough to give yourself the joy of watching the creative activity of painter, speaker or singer. But, surely, you have observed the masterful performance of mechanical craftsmen, and you have marveled not so much at their skill as at the evident ease of their stunt.

But when you dared to try to do the same thing—even if it was only the driving of a horse or the guiding of an automobile—then it was that your relatively unaccustomed hands betrayed you, and you discovered that mastery is easy only to the master!

Mastery Not Simple

After all, mastery is not so simple a matter as it seems. If you want to assure yourself of that, even without trying the same thing, merely observe anyone at work or at play who is less than a master.

A poor performance fairly makes you degenerate. Really, it hurts your feelings and wounds your self-respect! Because, subconsciously, you put yourself always in the place of the performer, therefore, you feel your own capacity questioned by the bungling craftsman.

In a sense, then, when you watch and approve a master, you approve and flatter yourself.

Be not deceived by the seeming ease of mastery. In rare cases it is a gift of the gods. But, as a rule, it means work, hard work, following ambition, vision and aspiration.

In this connection, it is well to repeat what has so often been said: that genius is the capacity for taking infinite pains, and success is attained by one-tenth of inspiration and nine-tenths of perspiration.

Be sure that even the greatest of the creative masters have, after long, apparently mechanically, gone through all the wholesome processes which finally give them the unfailing skill that makes mastery seem so easy.

Brilliant Painter

I have at times watched the brilliant painter, John Singer Sargent, at his work. But I never fooled myself into feeling that I could go and do likewise, as I paid the tribute of reverent and silent admiration to his creative facility and his uncanny felicity in translating material substance into terms of immortal truth and imperishable beauty.

From youth to maturity, this great master has worked—and now he works harder than ever—in order to bless the world with his artistic achievement.

That is something an average American needs to learn, namely that vision, purpose, assurance—and perspiration—are all involved in achievement and in progress towards mastery.

We are all in such a hurry, we are prone to forget that it takes time and work to move towards mastery.

We are so drunk with the democratic self-conceit, which makes us think ourselves as-good-as-the-best-fellow and-a-good-little-bit-better, that we fail to respect the expert and to consider the effort implied in his experience.

As a people, we are so superficial that we do not plumb the depths of power and of consecrated, concentrated living which all mastery represents!

At least, in the process, you will learn to respect the master—and yourself!
